Outstanding Students Receive Foundation Scholarships

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Seven high school seniors received Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation scholarships Tuesday evening at the Farm and Home Center.

"I think this is the most outstanding group we've had since I've been here," said Dr. John Schwartz. "Usually we have two or three outstanding candidates, but this year, we had so many outstanding applicants that it was a difficult selection. Every one of the winners is outstanding."

Each scholarship winner receives $1,400 to pursue a career in agriculture, food science or fashion design. Recipients must excel scholastically, in leadership, and in extracurricular activities.

Ryan Dodson said that his intense love for nature has influenced his decision to study enviromental science at Penn State University.

Ryan is active in numerous environmental and political groups such as the Sierra Club executive committee, which seeks to influence politicians.

At Manheim Township High School, Ryan is active in baseball, swim team, Students Against Starvation, Students Against Drunk Driving, treasurer of Amnesty International, Performing Arts stage crew, and the National Honor Society.

Last summer, Ryan spent three weeks in Germany as an exchange student.

At Christmastime, Ryan donates time in gift wrapping presents for the United Cerebral Palsy stand at Park City.

The beautiful Palomino horse is lovingly coaxed into a wedge between a padded partition and the movable wall that separates the preparation and operating rooms.

With the stethoscope plugged into her ears, the doctor checks the patient's pulse and makes one final check on the animal's heart. "It's in there — beating nicely," she said.

The order is given to open the valve to the bottle of sedation that is being held slightly above the catheter inserted into the patient's neck. Immediately the liquid begins to disappear down the tube. The medical team tenses against the expected action like 50-meter sprinters set in the blocks and waiting for the starter's gun to sound.

Expert eyes move from the horse to the sedation fluid disappearing down the I.V. tube. They pause and look back again. "It's taking a little longer than usual," someone says.

Dairy Issue Next Week Office Closed Monday

Don't forget. June Is Dairy Month. And our annual Lancaster Farming tribute to the dairy industry is scheduled to come to your farm next Saturday, June 1. We have talked to many farm families, and we will report what they have to say about their operations and the future of the dairy business. In addition, we will have news stories, farm management reports from the experts, and messages from our advertisers. The Cow Mania dairy recipes are coming in each day but you still have time to send your favorite before the deadline for the drawing June 1.

Our office will be closed Monday, May 27, to observe Memorial Day but will open again for business at 8 a.m. Tuesday. If you have a news story or an advertising message related to June Dairy Month, please call the office any day Monday (except the 27th) through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5. p.m. Our phone number is (717) 394-3047 or (717) 626-1164. Our Fax: (717) 733-6058.

Small fields of planted tobacco have started to become visible in Lancaster County as the weather cleared this week to allow farmers to begin spring planting. Mike Mellott, Quarryville, planted two acres of Maryland 609 last week with plants shipped up from South Carolina. He plans to finish planting another two acres with Pennsylvania Type 41 this week. In the photo, Mellott and his wife Denise plant while Eric Sheets drives tractor. Mellott had the grand champion Type 41 wrapper tobacco at the Lancaster County Tobacco Show for the last two years.

Prices were unchanged to higher for whole egg and sugared yolks, and the balance of prices were generally unchanged. The market tone was steady for whites, and fully steady to firm for the remaining categories; yolks were in the firmest position. Demand was fairly active with increased buyer inquiry due in part to overall egg market strengthening, and higher prices. Floor stocks were no more than adequate for current orders. Edible liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending May 11, 1996 were 1% more than last week, and 15% more than last year.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MAY 22, 1996

Wheat, corn and sorghum took a severe beating today. Spring planting and South Korea corn purchases had front stage center earlier. Wheat 3 to 9 cents lower. Corn 14 to 16 cents lower. Sorghum 23 to 27 cents lower. Soybeans 2 to 3 cents lower, with Southern Iowa off 12 cents. Gulf bids got kicked harder than truck quotes. However, new crop corn and soybean futures actually ended up slightly higher. This year's wheat crop in a heap of trouble. Continuous rains up North and Spring Wheat plantings at the lowest level for this time of the year since 1961. Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and parts of Kansas enduring severe drought conditions and 11 million acres of Hard Red Winter Wheat already plowed up. Severe Winter kill both Hard and Soft Wheat, on top of too much rain this Spring on many acres of Soft Wheat lower yields. Harvest is getting underway down South. Producers claim both Boards can hear the grinding of combine starters and prices immediately start dropping. All week South Korea bidding for U.S. corn, 367,000 tonnes for the first 3 days. However, a large part of this is for new crop corn and some delivery on next year's calander. Corn planting is making very good progress, especially the Eastern Combelt, which was lagging far behind normal. Printed estimates of acres planted is outdate before the ink dries. With the help of Grandpa, wives and Mother Nature farmers can plant over 5 million acres in a long day. This time of the year field cultivators can open the ground and with hot sun and warm breezes, planters may be up and running the next day. More rains are in the forecast for today and tomorrow to move into the Eastern Combelt. Cutoff planting dates will be later than usual this year due to high corn prices. A large percentage of corn was planted very early this year, now up, looking good and moisture is beneficial. RAINS MAKE GRAINS. Soybean drills running neck and neck with corn planters. There is still plenty of time to get beans in the ground. Export News: Purchaser Commodity Tonnage Del Date Taiwan Wheat 38,000 Jun-Jul South Korea Corn 210,000 Jul-Feb Totals: Wheat 38,000 tonnes. 210,000 tonnes of Corn.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 27-JUNE 2, 1996

MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 27.

RED POPPIES AND PEACE

Since World War I, poppies have been a symbol of remembrance at Memorial Day, formerly Decoration Day The red poppy was used to symbolize the blood of those who died in service to their countries. After World War I, veterans sold artificial red poppies to help raise money for French and Belgian war orphans Today, donations to veterans' groups are often marked with a token paper red poppy The crinkled crepe paper closely resembles the texture of the real poppy (Papaver), which is grown as a hardy annual or perennial. "In Flanders fields the poppies blow, Between the crosses, row on row" – John McCrae

Soldiers in peace are like chimneys in summer.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ To prolong poppies' life as a cut flower, plunge their stems in hot water after cutting.

HERMITS

2 scant cups sugar
1 cup butter (2 sticks)
1 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon soda
3 cups flour (heaping)
3 eggs, separated and beaten
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup seeded raisins, chopped
1 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup currants, washed, dried, tossed in flour

Mix ingredients in order given, then drop by tablespoonsful onto buttered cookie sheets, allowing plenty of room for spreading. The finished hermits will be ragged, but toothsome. If you prefer, roll the dough into a rough rectangle, bake, then cut into squares before it cools. Bake 10 to 20 minutes at 350° F, depending on the size of your cakes.

Makes about 1-1/2 dozen squares.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A dripping June brings all things in tune.

If the pigs are carrying straw in their mouths, look for high winds.

Rainbow at morn, put your hook in the corn.

Special Offer. Handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs. Send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept. UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444.

OPINION

Neighborly Farm Odors

The conflict continues between owners of new homes located close to farms where normal operations may cause offensive odors. Should the non-farm neighbors just put up with it, or should the farmers change their practices?

Nuisance issues involving farmers and their non-farm neighbors are not new. As far back as 1965, farm publications were talking about the possibility of landing in court if your manure odors were offensive to your neighbors. Today, more people are opting to move out of the city to the country, and the number of animals kept on many farms has increased drastically.

A recent conference sought to get a handle on what could be done to bring the two sides together. Of course, education and communication were at the top of the list of solutions.

A program to let new home buyers know about agriculture operations before they buy the home could be started in the local community. Include with this information a discussion about the right to farm law. Handouts about what to expect from country living could be distributed by real estate agents for new rural home buyers.

One of the most important negative aspects of education about rural life comes from the "Old MacDonald" representation in commercials and other public presentations. We need to revamp this image to portray modern, typical farming scenes.

Farm tours should be combined with processing plant, grocery distribution centers, and animal research center tours. If you host a farm tour point out how you minimize other problems, such as flies, water quality concerns, and the appearance of the farm. Many odor complaints arise as the result of other concerns about the operation. By managing all areas of possible concern, odor issues may be minimized.

Many times it is the farmer's attitude that causes the problem. Tell your neighbors you are going to haul pig manure early in the week so the odor will be gone by the next weekend when they are likely to have an outdoor picnic. If you make an effort be to your neighbor what you would want him or her to be to you if your positions were exchanged, you will have gone a long way toward eliminating legal problems from odors.

To Combat High Feed Prices

Dairy farmers are in the business of converting feed into milk.

According to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, feed-related costs represent more than half the cost of producing milk. The drastic increases in feed prices over the past months have forced dairy farmers to make some very important decisions.

When corn prices nearly double, producers scramble for alternative feeds. Consequently, the alternative feeds become scarce and expensive. Thus, you need to help cows make the best use of all feeds they consume so more nutrients end up as milk in the tank or flesh on the cow and less as expensive fertilizer in the gutter or wasted feed.

To help accomplish this, keep rations properly balanced. Also, feed and care for cows so their rumens stay healthy and function at peak efficiency 24 hours a day.

To Look At Cropping Systems

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, says you may want to consider some changes in your cropping system in view of the current high feed prices.

You may want to grow more grain crops for a year or two to maximize total farm profit.

Either rent more land or grow less forage. If you farm more land, consider hiring a custom operator to do some of the fieldwork. This will help to reduce production costs and work loads.

Reducing forage acreage also reduces total nutrient production and cow-carrying capacity of the farm. This means you might have to purchase more forages, cull some cows, or contract a farmer to raise your heifers.

You may want to utilize quickly available home grown feeds by harvesting or grazing small grains and by early controlled grazing of some hay fields. However, be sure not to harm hay stands by over grazing or by grazing when soils are too wet.

To Consider Options To High Feed Prices

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, discusses some additional options you may want to consider as strategies for dealing with high feed prices.

Feed scarce and expensive feeds to profitable cows only and continue to feed and care for them well. That means culling the less profitable cows.

Also, drying off some lower producers (those worthy of keeping) early will allow them to consume less expensive feeds. Contracting someone else to raise your heifers and dry cows will reduce your feed requirements.

Remember, you are in the business of converting feed to milk. You cannot do that unless you put lots of feed into cows. The last 10, 20, or more pounds you can squeeze out of a well-cared-for cow is the cheapest and most profitable milk you will ever produce.

One pound of 11 cent corn dry matter ($5.20 per bushel) has the capability of producing 2.5 pounds of 13 cent per pound milk worth a total of 33 cents. But be sure to keep the cow and her rumen healthy and functional and monitor production responses closely.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Every problem has a solution. Hang in there and you will find it."

REPORTING FOR DUTY!
May 26, 1996

Background Scripture:
Matthew 6:5-15;7:7-14; Luke 11:1-13

Devotional Reading:
Matthew 7:7-14

Why is it that we do such a poor job of teaching each other how to pray? I can't recall anyone in church or seminary teaching me how to pray. I do remember that some people taught me how to say my prayers, but that's not the same as praying. Many of the prayers I heard said in church were not really prayers—they were performances.

They remind me of a man in a Quaker meeting, who, according to Rufus Jones, made some announcements before closing with a prayer. But, in the middle of his prayer, he remembered some information he had overlooked. And so he prayed: "Thou knowest, O Lord, that there is plenty of food for all who wish to stay for dinner, and Thou knowest that there is hay in the shed behind the meetinghouse for all the horses."

TEACH US TO PRAY!

So, when the disciples of Jesus come to him, saying, "Lord, teach us to pray," I can understand why they made this request. I'm sure they had heard and said many prayers, but they seem to realize that, whatever else they were doing, they were not praying. And they came to that realization because they saw Jesus praying and they knew something was happening when He prayed that did not happen when they prayed.

I'm not talking about being taught the "right" technique—there is none. Jesus condemned a popular technique of his own day: "And in praying do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do..." (Mt. 6:5). The "how" of prayer has nothing to do with saying the right words, in the right way. Jesus gives his disciples a simple prayer to teach them how to pray: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our debts as we have forgiven our debtors; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil (Mt. 7:9-13).

True, we often use these same words—or words very similar—when we pray. But "how" is not in the words, but in the spirit behind the prayer. It is a prayer that is concerned not only with our daily bread, but also God's kingdom. There's nothing wrong with praying for our daily bread—we should—but there's more to prayer than daily bread. There is, as we see in the Lord's Prayer, praise, thanksgiving, submission to God's will, receiving and giving forgiveness, a request for guidance and commitment to God's plan and purpose.

THE DAILY BREAD LEVEL

I'm afraid my prayers never get past the "daily bread" level. God does care about my daily bread, my safety and well-being, but He also cares about my soul and my place in his kingdom. Once a mother overheard her son praying and she noticed that he was mostly telling God what kind of help he wanted from him. Later, the mother told him, "Son, don't bother to give God instructions; just report for duty."

So prayer is not just a matter of getting, but also of giving, of submitting ourselves to God's purpose. It is not a matter of getting him to do what we want, but of offering ourselves to do what He wants.

And prayer is much more than words. Senator Jacob Javits used to tell about the little girl who lived next door. She really believed in the power of prayer. When her brother built a trap to catch sparrows, she prayed hard that he wouldn't catch any. And he didn't! When her mother asked her, "What made you so sure your prayer would be answered?" the little girl replied: "I went back there three days ago and kicked the trap to pieces!"

TO PRESERVE QU

Firm, well shaped bales of uniform size are easiest to wrap and store. Due to the nature of high moisture hay, the baler must be designed for the task. Although most conventional round balers will make silage bales, premature structural failure, plugging, and inconsistent bale density should be expected after a relatively short time. Optimum bale size is 4'x4'. Larger bales can be wrapped, but due to the extra weight, have a tendency to sag which increases the risk of splitting plastic film.

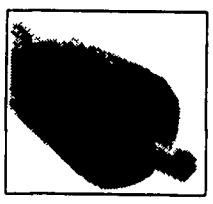
DEUTZ FAHR

ROUND BALERS

DEUTZ FAHR

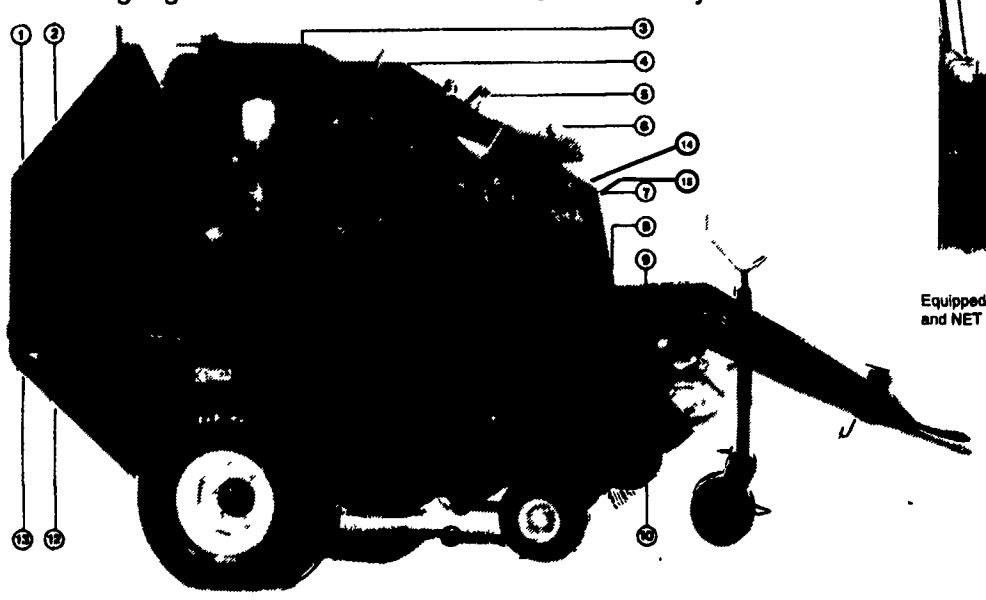
Deutz-Fahr round balers have established a worldwide reputation for innovation, durability and performance.

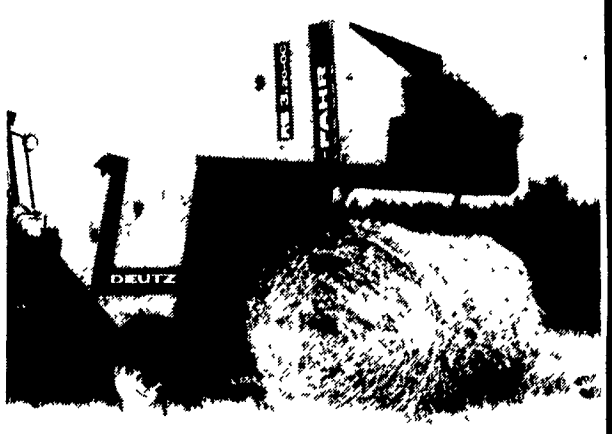


17 Thick walled ribbed steel rollers produce consistent results. Smaller diameter rollers reduce wedging and leaf loss is kept to a minimum. Splined shafts are used on all drive rollers for maximum efficient power transfer.

Special features on DEUTZ-FAHR round balers are why they are able to produce consistent bales year after year of use.

1. Roller bearings mounted on the outside of the bale chamber.
2. Automatic chain lubrication system.
3. Reinforced bale chamber for extra strength.
4. Closely spaced small diameter rollers.
5. Automatic "TWIN-FIX" twine tying system.
6. Netwrap option with a capacity of 270 bales per roll.
7. Easily accessible twine box holding (4) twine balls.
8. Universal drawbar with 16 positions and swivel wheel jack.
9. Adjustable baffle plate.
10. Hydraulic lift pickup.
11. Pneumatic tire pickup gauge wheels.
12. Mechanical tailgate lock.
13. Six bale density settings.
14. Splined drive shafts.
15. Extra heavy drive chain.





Equipped with optional WIDE PICK-UP, OPTI-CUT pre-cutting mechanism, combination TW and NET WRAP, the DEUTZ-FAHR RB3200 OC is the ideal machine for custom work

All these features translate into outstanding performance and long life.

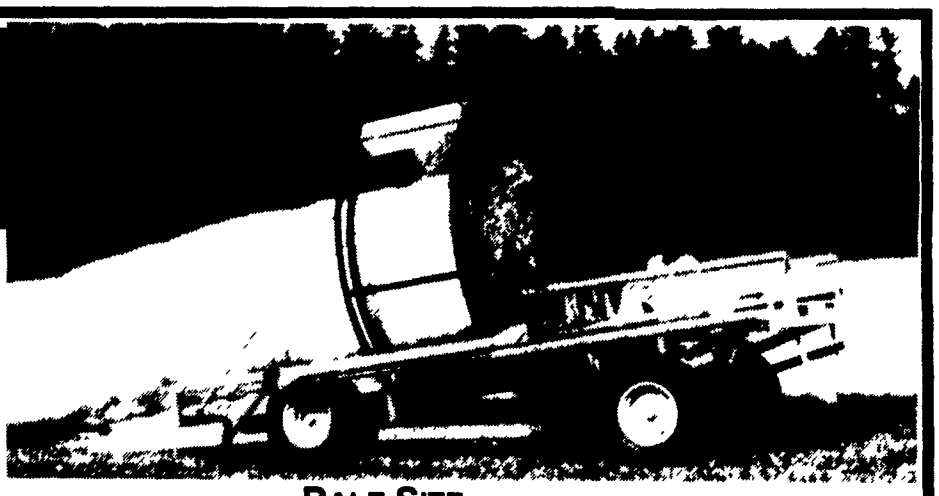
Balers equipped with a built in cutting mechanism are able to increase bale density by up to 20%, and prechopped material can be easily fed.
Be sure to use untreated sisal, plastic or nylon twine if you intend to wrap high moisture bales. Treated Sisal twine produces a chemical reaction that will burn through plastic film.

TUBE-LINE BALEWRAPPER



BIG BALE SILAGE

Big bale silage has become an economical alternative to dry hay or chopped silage. High quality feed can be made with a low investment in equipment. Forage is cut, wilted and sealed air tight with stretch film.

SAVES FILM - REDUCES COST

After the ends are sealed, Tube Line bale wrappers wrap only the circumference of the bales compared to single bale wrappers which wrap the ends of each bale. This saves at least 40% on film cost.

SAVES TIME

On average the Tube Line machines will wrap a bale per minute. Various options are available to match the speed of wrapping with needs of the farmer. These options include a second tensioner and 30 inch wide plastic.

BALE SIZE

There is a Tube Line Wrapper available which will wrap almost all sizes of bales from a 4'x4' round bale to the biggest of square bales.

PSU President Spanier To Expand Extension

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Penn State University President Graham Spanier spoke to 200 Extension Professionals at their spring conference in Grantville on May 14. The group presented President Spanier with a print of Norman Rockwell's painting "The County Agent" as a welcome-to-Pennsylvania gift.

In his address the president discussed the imperatives for, and the capacity of, a university extension system. The imperatives are flexible and focused learning opportunities, and programming to help families and youth.

The imperatives were set in the context of great historical change and great social need. The Land Grant Universities have helped the agricultural industry adopt and profit from such changes as environmental concerns, computers, robotics, global markets, and biotechnology. Social need is too easily demonstrated by such statistics as engagement in 2 or more risky behaviors by half the youth between 10 and 17 years of age.

Past success and new technology suggests that the university can assist the 80 percent of the citizens who believe additional education is important for their job future. These citizens need flexible and focused opportunities to pursue this education. The Cooperative Extension Service provides the ideal model for this according to President Spanier.

Penn State University has significant capacity to aid citizens in many areas, but especially with families and youth and career development. President Spanier envisions the greatest impact of the University occurring when teaching, research, and service are fully integrated university wide. He believes the goal to be reached is clear, however the structure to accomplish the goal is still under development.

Outstanding Students

school and community events, he said, was inspired by the morals and influence of his parents, Samuel and Regina Dodson of Lititz. His dad coaches baseball and his mom helps at many school functions. Ryan has two brothers, Thomas, 16, and Paul, 2.

Neil Fellenbaum doesn't live on a farm "and probably won't ever be able to own one," he said. So he wants to do the next best thing — become an ag teacher.

Neil works on a tobacco and produce farm and has lots of interest in growing produce.

"My ag teacher has had a lot of influence on me," Neil said of the Penn Manor FFA adviser. "I'd like to influence students about the value of agriculture, too."

Neil is vice president of the FFA and competed in poultry and meats judging for three years in a row at the FFA national competition held in Kansas City.

Neil received Penn State's Presidential scholarship for his high SAT score of 1280.

The son of C. Bradley and Debora Fellenbaum, Neil has a sister Michele, 16, and a brother Glen, 15.

Neil is a member of the National Honor Society and of the youth group at Creswell EC.

Keith Hoover will study ag engineering at Penn State.

"It's a wide open area with technology expanding, I think it's a good field to get into," the 17-year-old said.

Keith helps his parents, David and Judy, on their Washington Boro farm, where they have a farrow-to-finish hog operation, raise beef cattle, and crop farm 350 acres with tobacco, corn, soybeans, and wheat.

Keith has won numerous ribbons for showing market hogs and his crop entries at local fairs and the state farm show.

An FFA student, Keith has earned top state awards and the national awards in poultry and in meat judging. He is also vice president of the FFA and a member of the National Honor Society. Keith is a member of the Mellingers Mennonite Youth Group. He has a sister, Denise, 16, and a brother, Ryan, 12.

Keith also received $1,000 scholarships from FFA and Penn State for his top grades.

Melonica Kauffman, the 18-year-old daughter of Dennis and Carol Kauffman, plans tc study dairy science at Delaware Valley College.

"I grew up with cows all my life and I enjoy working with them," Melonica said. "I want to own my own farm someday — definitely with cows."

Melonica may return to the family's 100-acre farm along Willow Road in Lancaster. Her two older sisters, Melissa and Melanie, aren't interested in cows, Melonica said.

Although a Lancaster countian and a member of the 4-H dairy club and the junior Holstein Club, Melonica was a member of the Lebanon County 4-H Dairy Bowl, which placed third in state competition.

At Conestoga Valley High School, Melonica was a member of the National Honor Society. She is also active in her church youth group.

"I chose Delaware Valley because it has a good herd of cows and it's a nice, small campus," Melonica said.

Heather Oberholtzer is best known as both Lancaster County and state alternate dairy princess.

"I love farming and agriculture as a way of life," she said.

She is the eighth generation to live on her family's Seven Gen Farm in Elizabethtown. She will say goodbye to milking 75 cows when she heads to Penn State's main campus in the fall.

After a summer job of assisting a veterinarian, Heather has decided the expense of eight years of study is not for her, but she will study dairy and animal science.

At Elizabethtown High School, Heather is an FFA student who has received many awards and held top offices. She recently received scholarships from both FFA and a women's service club.

At school, Heather is also a member of the National Honor Society, the Overcoming Drug With Education Club, and was a member of the marching band and girls' soccer team. She was selected as the November student of the month and was named Teen of the Week for the Lancaster Intell newspaper.

Heather's parents are Clair and Laverne. Heather has an older sister, Jesslyn, and three younger brothers, Brian, Brent, and Delmar.

Jessica Weaver is heading off to Penn State to study ag education.

"Agriculture is really important in society and people should know it," she said.

Although she doesn't live on a farm, Jessica said that because she lives in a rural area and her parents are both from the farm, she learned to respect the agricultural community.

At Garden Spot High School, Jessica is FFA president of her chapter and treasurer of the county FFA. She was a member of the tennis team for four years and a National Honor Society member.

She was influenced to attend Penn State after spending five weeks there as part of the the Governor's School for ag sciences held during the summer.

The daughter of John and Martha Weaver of Denver, Jessica has a sister Christina, 20, and a brother, Andy, 16. Jessica is active in the Bowmansville Mennonite Youth Group.

Andrew Young is covaledictorian of his class at Solanco High School, president of the National Honor Society, director of the peer helper program, and vice president of his FFA chapter and the county.

In FFA competitions, Andrew won top awards at the county and state levels and was named one of the top winners in business management. In extemporaneous speaking, Andrew talked his way to the top in county and regional competition and went on to place fourth in the state.

He has also won a National Merit Scholarship and was named National Merit Student of the Month, Rotary Club Student of the Month, and outstanding conferee at the Rotary Leadership Conference.

Andrew said that his confident leadership evolved from experience.

"I was the kid in grade school that everyone picked on," he said. The unpleasant experience taught Andrew not to rely upon what others thought of him but to develop firm beliefs.

"In high school things turned around for me. I think other kids grew to respect me because I am confident in what I believe," Andrew said.

"I have a great family who influenced me by their consistent living," the 18-year-old son of Matthew and Linda Young said.

Andrew grew up on Red Knob Farm in Peach Bottom. The 350-375 dairy herd is farmed in partnership with Andrew's father, uncle, and grandfather. Andrew plans to study ag economics at the University of Delaware to use on the family farm.

After college graduation, he also foresees himself attending a seminary. He already is receiving experience in the ministry because he is assistant to the youth pastor at Faith Reformed Church.

The scholarship monies are derived from the trust fund set up by the late Elmer L. Esbenshade. The number of scholarships given varies from year to year depending on the interest earned from the trust.

PRUA Works To Find Common Ground

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — A general consensus of attempting to find common ground with people concerned with animal rights was apparently reached last week during the annual conference of the Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA), held at the DoubleTree Hotel in Middletown.

That goal was expressed by several of the speakers and participants as a means of creating a dialogue with those who may not be fully aware of the reality of animal use, and as a way of achieving success for both groups in condeming true animal abuse and cruelty.

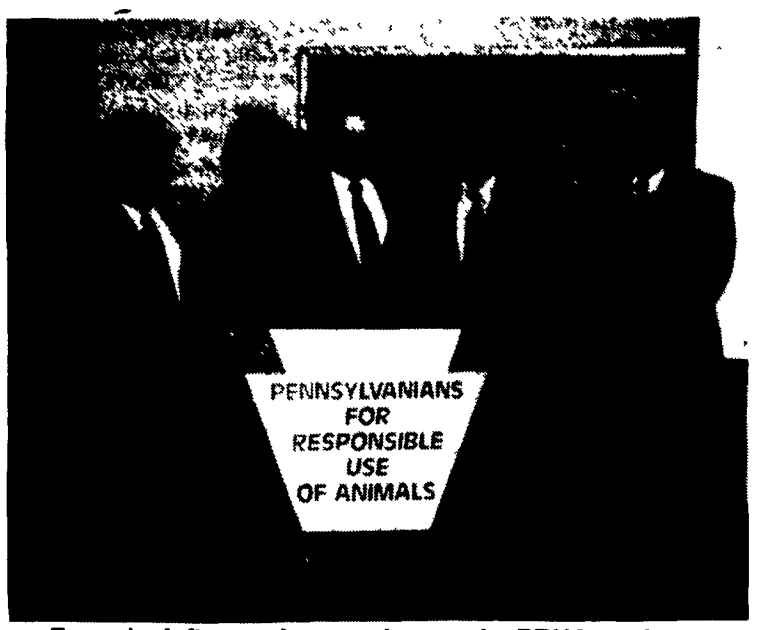
However, some questioned why a more aggressive position shouldn't be taken to combat twisted facts and propaganda used by some alleged animal rights proponents to portray all animal use as evil and cruel.

The argument for more aggression is based on the fact that many of the claims by animal rights activism leaders are based on rare, illegal or uncondoned practices.

It was suggested that to take a defensive posture to animal use creates a belief among the general public that there must be something inherently wrong with animal use, or else people wouldn't be trying to defend it.

The conference was sponsored by PRUA and affiliated organizations and was held in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and the Penn State University Department of Dairy and Animal Science.

A total of 20 speakers were scheduled to make presentations during the conference, and almost all were present.



From the left, morning speakers at the PRUA conference are Bob Junk, president of the Pa. Farmer's Union; Tracy Fortson, regional director of government relations with the National Association for Biomedical Research; William Stricklin; Lantz Hoffman with the Pa. Game Commission; and moderator Dr. Lowell Wilson, PRUA executive director.

The morning speakers addressed topics of bioethics, agriculture, biomedical research, and wildlife conservation. Speakers then formed a panel for a discussion session.

The afternoon speakers discussed issues such as federal legislative efforts potentially affecting the use of animals and their care, state legislative issues, and legal issues of animal use and misuse.

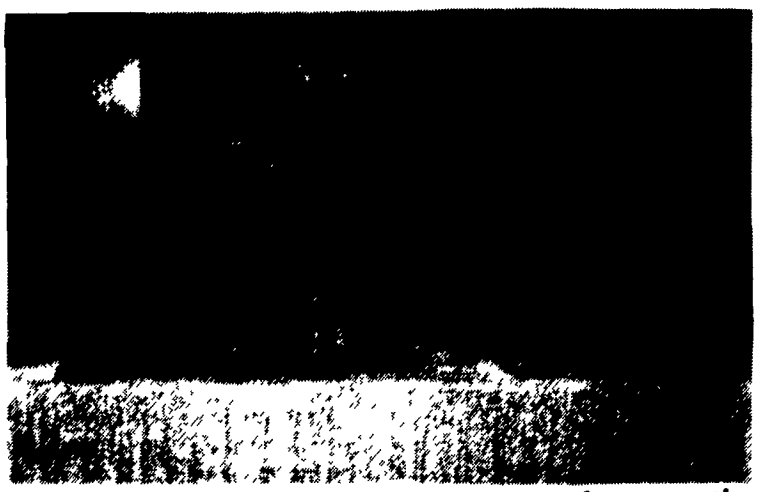
During the last section of the conference, two concurrent breakout groups formed, one discussing youth programs and another discussing adult programs on animal care education.

According to its literature, PRUA is a pro-animal use organization — a coalition of animal users, animal interest groups and concerned individuals working together to maintain the right to use animals as part of daily life.

The group was formed as a result of a relatively recent phenomena in America — animal rights activism — in which a group of people (mostly characterized as those with no direct apparent animal-dependency or animal-care background) who have developed an extreme view as to the relationship of man to animals.

Though promoting their cause as one devoted to ending cruelty to animals, the organizations that have formed in recent times have developed extreme beliefs such as human beings have no right to affect or use animals in any way.

Groups such as People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA)'s have agendas that include calling for bans on using animals as pets, sensory aides, food, sources of fur or leather, for pleasure (such as riding horses), for doing work, entertainment (circus or performing animals), and for testing in efforts to find cures for diseases such as Aquired Imune Deficiency Syndrom (AIDS).



Afternoon speakers at the PRUA conference form a panel to discuss issues with the audience. Grange legislative director Brenda Shambaugh answers a question about proposed animal welfare legislation, while Dave Ivan, with the Pa. Beef Council, looks on, and Leola attorney Cynthia Boyer Blakeslee listens.

In general, PRUA and its youth organization Students for the Responsible Use of Animals (SRUA), were formed to affirm the belief that using animals is not a definition of cruelty and that the majority of those who use animals are not practicing cruelty.

Cruelty is the act or state of being inclined to cause pain or suffering, and is marked by its absence of humane feelings.

Those in commercial or recreational agriculture have argued that cruel treatment is self-defeating because it generally results in unsatisfactory animal development and behavior, and thus forces the economic downfall of the cruel or ignorant.

The differences in interpretation of cruelty reflect then on an individual's sense of humane feelings. Something that is humane is characterized by compassion, sympathy or consideration for other human beings or animals.

It is believed by some that those people who claim to sense cruelty on behalf of animals in normal animal-use practices (such as a family dog, or cat, or raising traditional agricultural livestock) are in fact expressing a personal disastifaction with their own relationship to other human beings.

The animal rights activists' claims to speak on behalf of animals is similar to other situations in which people claim to speak on behalf of entities unable to speak or communicate to humans — it is difficult to refute before the general public because the general public doesn't have a lot of experience with animals.

Further, depending on a foundation based on scientific evidence to refute accusations of cruel or inhumane treatment of animals is also difficult because by definition, a cruel of inhuman act depends on the person interpreting the act.

Also, most people, according to a study reported this week in a Har-

Farm scenes like this were easy to find this week as tractors, cultivators, and planters were pressed into action to try to catch up with spring planting delayed by wet, cool weather earlier in the month. These tractors were working in the fields west of Millersville at the corner of Donerville and Charlestown Roads looking toward Route 999. Corn that had been planted early started to respond to the sunshine. One newly planted alfalfa field looked really good as the growing season became more favorable. The warmer weather also pushed forages along, and many farmers were taking the opportunity to make hay and haylage. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Lancaster DHIA

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster DHIA technician Ken Haverkamp recently moved north to test herds in Lebanon County to help keep up with a growing number of dairy farms joining the Lancaster DHIA ranks.

Formerly of Willow Street, Haverkamp tested herds in Southern Lancaster County for over four years before moving to Myerstown last month. Currently Haverkamp is testing 30 herds in Lebanon and Berks counties.

"We're just getting a lot of herds up in this part of the county," Haverkamp said.

Farmers push their herds hard in the north, said Haverkamp, adding that he tests some herds three times a day.

Haverkamp grew up on a small farm in Bucks County and later joined the Army. Retiring after 20 years in the military, Haverkamp went to work at Ford New Holland Inc. until the company announced layoffs. Soon after, he was hired as a Lancaster DHIA technician.

"I wanted to stay in agriculture," he said.

Lancaster DHIA services 1,280 herds in Lancaster and surrounding counties and maintains a two-day turnaround time for all Lancaster DHIA customers. For more information call (717) 665-5960.

Equine Medical Center: Comprehensive Teaching, Research, Service

relax and he falls asleep against the pads. The medical team swings into action. The padded partition swivels back. The wall opens, exposing the operating area. In frantic gentleness, the attendents tug their half-ton patient onto the gurney that is positioned in the operating room ready to receive the horse, who is oblivious to all the activity around him.

When ready, the gurney is wheeled into operating position. Medical machines start. Floodlights are positioned. A light blue drape is placed over the patient. Sanitary gloves are sleeved over each hoof.

The leg with the splinter that needs to be removed is secured. Iodine covers the wounded area. A safety razor is used to shave the hair around the wound.

And thus, another of the nearly 200 operations that are done each month are ready to commence at the Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center in Leesburg, Va.

What started as a dream 11 years ago has now become one of the premier medical establishments for the nation's equine industry. A $4 million gift from the late Mrs. Marion duPont Scott and a donation of 200 acres of land by the Westmoreland Davis Memorial Foundation made the center possible. In addition, $2.2 million from private sources was raised to fund equipment acquisition. The Equine Medical Center serves as the Leesburg campus of the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine. It is part of a comprehensive veterinary teaching, research, and service program based at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Va., and the Avrum Gudelsky Veterinary Center at the University of Maryland at College Park.

Tugging the half-ton, sleeping patient onto the gurney requires effort.

The patient is coaxed into the padded holding area.

Dr. Fred Fregin was given the task of developing the center when it was only the building. At the time, there was no staff, no equipment, and no money to secure either. And there was no clientele.

After serving on the staff at New Bolton Center at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia for 17 years and then several years at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., Dr. Fregin heard about a possible position at the new equine center. Thinking he might like to devote himself full time to the care of horses, he applied for a position on the staff. In the first interview, he was given the opportunity to mastermind the development of both the center and the center's programs.

How do you convince established veternarians to come and take a chance on something that exists only in the dreams of those who foresaw the potential? Dr. Fregin has just the winning personality and pursuasive approaches to get the job done.

"The most exciting thing about the Center is that is is a true public/

Foals receive round-the-clock attention from medical staff and volunteers who work at the Center for the experience and the love of horses.

Dr. Fred Fregin masterminded the development of the Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center in Leesburg, Virginia. A portrait in oil of Marion duPont Scott that hangs at the Center is shown at left. "Harness® Xtra: the best weed control I've seen in years"

Rick Schlosberg, 2,000 acres
Newtown Square, Pennsylvania

"I had always been a big Bicep user in corn, until I started seeing frequent mid-season escapes of giant foxtail. Even spiking the Bicep with extra Dual didn't work. To make a long story short, I went with Harness® Xtra on 90 percent of my acreage in 1995. And, I'll be doing it again this year.

With Harness Xtra, I had excellent long-season weed control of giant foxtail, fall panicum and triazine-resistant lambsquarters. I saw no escapes at all for the first time in over six years. It saved me money, too, because I didn't have to spike it to get consistent control or come back with resprays.

I'm using Harness Xtra 5.6L in a big way this season. I encourage you to do the same."

Compact Meetings Set

KINGSLEY (Susquehanna Co.) — Local representatives of the Pennsylvania Grange, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Pro Ag, Pennsylvania Farmers Union, and National Farmers Organization will be sponsoring a series of meetings to explain the North East Interstate Dairy Compact.

The meetings will be held on Wednesday night, May 29 at the cafeteria at the Mountain View High School, Kingsley, and on Thursday night, May 30 at the Bradley Hall, Columbia Crossroads. Both meetings will start at 8 p.m.

The organizations intend to have representatives from New England present to explain the Compact.

Now all six New England states belong to the Compact. Recently the Compact was given approval by the U.S. Congress. Congress also gave the authority for Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia to join the Compact.

The Compact as written would form a new commission that would have the authority to establish higher prices for Class I milk (fluid).

Using 1990 as the base year, the commission in reality could establish a Class I price of at least $19 cwt.

All dairy farmers, business people, and interested parties should attend these meetings.

For more information call Louise Rinker at (717) 924-3518.

Robert M. Rice, truck driver for Hess Mills, Paradise, right, won high honors when he recently competed in a driving contest sponsored by the Lancaster County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association. Rice was the champion rookie driver and placed third in the five-axle tank tractor-trailer division. Drivers who had driven at least one year without an accident could compete in a written test, inspection of a vehicle, and a driving test. They maneuvered their big rigs through diminishing clearance tests, crossed a bridge, executed a left turn, circled around a tire, and parallel-parked with a front stop in perfect position. Twenty-seven other drivers for various businesses in the County competed at the event at the Mt. Joy Vo-Tech School. Extending congratulations in the photo, are from left, Ray Slaymaker, Hess Mills manager, and Jack Hess, owner.

Equine Medical Center

private partnership," Fregin said. "Our equine center had this partnership long before the concept was a buzzword in education. Most veterinary hospitals have been part of institutions that receive state money. We now get state support, as well as private support. But when we first started the hospital, we didn't get state support, except for my salary. We had to generate everything ourselves through private donations, gifts, and patient care revenues.

"Through the generous donation of Marion duPont Scott and the local trustees of the Westmoreland Davis Foundation, we got the land and buildings. But it was an empty shell. We took local horse owners through the building and told them about our vision. They became excited about what could happen here and helped us get up and running.

"We had 17 people on staff within one year and started providing services as early as August of 1984. The caseload increased rapidly until the 1988-89 recession hit this area. This recession negatively impacted the equine industry, and we had fewer and fewer horses to treat. What had looked exciting suddenly began to look like we may need to close the hospital.

"But now we are seeing another upturn in the business cycle. The caseload has increased dramatically. We have a lot more hospitalized patients, and last month we did 192 surgeries. That's a large number for us, and now we are talking about the need for expansion."

The Equine Center is located in the heart of horse country. Locally, five contiguous counties have 50,000 horses. The dairy industry left the area, and these dairy farms have each been divided into three or four horse farms so that the horse population continues to increase. If you go to the north and east, the seven counties that surround Baltimore, Maryland, have 70,000 non-racing thoroughbred horses.

Richard Gargagliano is the business adminstrator and handles staff and program operations. "This was my dream to come here," Gargagliano said. "It's hard work, but everyone is so dedicated — focused to get the animal better. Taking care of a horse that is down on the mat is even harder than it looks. For example, we give round-the-clock care to foals in the pediatric ward, and these babies that can weigh 150 pounds must be picked up and turned over. They don't get up without kicking out their legs. Bruises comes with the job. You're lucky if it is just a few bruises."

In many cases, volunteers can sit with the patients and inform nurses or veterinarians if there is a change in the medical condition. These volunteers may be pre-veterinarian students, youth who are looking to learn more about the profession, or those who just want to help. They are given a little information when they start, but most of their experience is on-the-job training. The center is very dependent on these volunteers to expand staff time and reduce costs to the horse owners.

Spring is a frantic time of year for the Center. In winter, horses are taken out of active work, but now they are back in training. And of course this is when the babies are born. Business for the center is up 30 to 40 percent over last year.

The Equine Center has all the medical equipment and a pharmacy, just like a human hospital. However, medicine is prescribed and dispensed in much larger doses since the patients each weigh about 1,000 pounds. Five-liter bags of liquid rather than one-liter bags are commonly used. That's one of the reasons why treating a horse is so expensive.

One of the major diagnostic tools at the center is nuclear scintigraphy. This devices creates a two-dimensional picture of a bodily radiation source. Since lameness continues to be the most common problem for performance and pleasure horses alike, this equipment is a valuable part of the sports medicine service offered.

The horse may not show lameness or any other defect. But the trainer or a potential buyer would like to know if there are any structural defects in the horse that may cause problems under the increased stress of work in the future. Nuclear scintigraphy can provide a full body scan of the animal.

The newly renovated scintigraphy suite at the center houses two gamma cameras. One is mounted on a boom and moves freely around the animal. The other is recessed in the floor to allow full-hoof views. This equipment provides a more accurate picture than hand-held portable nuclear scanning devices.

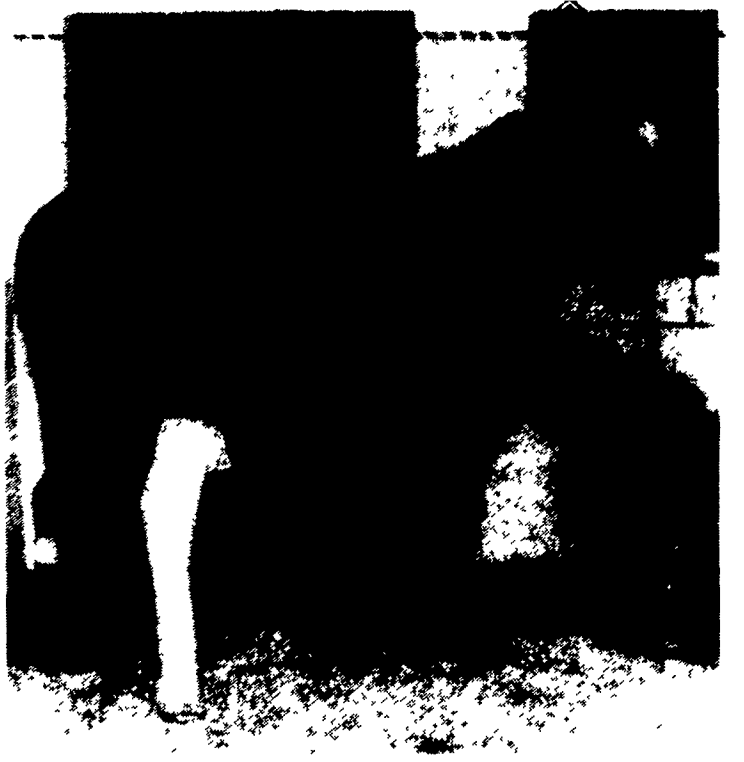
A radio-pharmaceutical, specific for tissues such as bone, is adminstrated to the horse. The gamma cameras scan the animal and measure the radiation emitted from the different parts of the body.

A computer identifies areas of increased concentration of the radio-pharmaceutical as "hot spots" on the scintigram. The procedure is no more dangerous to the horse than a series of X-rays.

The center has a program where high school students can come and spend a day with the veterinarians. In addition, fourth year veterinarian students come to the Center for six weeks of intensive study. And graduate students can take up residency to get advanced training working full time at the Center in preparation for a master of science degree. When they graduate from the Center, they can possibly teach or do advanced work.

Both Dr. Fregin and Gargagliano marvel at the vision Marion duPont Scott and her advisors had in selecting this site for the Equine Medical Center. Gargagliano said that since a large number of horses are located near the Center, this has become the collective place for all the medical cases.

Dr. Fregin agrees. "Horse owners are very fortunate in the mid-Atlantic region," he said. "With New Bolton Center to the north, the Blacksburg Teaching Center to the south, and the Equine Medical Center here at Morven Park, horse owners are within two to three hours driving distance from medical treatment. That's within a good service distance even for colic cases."



This patient has a full leg cast to show for his stay at the Medical Center.

Marion duPont Scott dedicated most of her life to breeding, training, and racing thoroughbred horses. Five of her horses were named National Steeplechase champions. One of her most famous, Battleship, became the first American-bred horse to win the grueling English Grand National Steeplechase in 1938.

Today, the Equine Medical Center is fulfilling her dreams. And Fregin believes the future is bright. "We are thinking that part of the future will be in telemedicine," he said. "With all the things that are happening in telecommunications and distance learning, some of those things can also apply to the transfer of diagnostic capabilities for remote sites.

"What seems exciting is that Virginia Tech has been asked to develop a wide area network that will link all the state-supported teaching units together. If a class were to be given at a community college or at one of the larger universities, that class could be attended by people on site but also at any remote location that could be connected to a video conferencing center here at the equine center.

"In addition, diagnostic information could be sent back and forth from an equine radiologist at the center to the racetrack at Richmond or some other remote site with the capability of receiving the information. With this kind of interchange, the horse could be treated immediately on location.

"This has been a dream for me," Fregin said. "The whole time I was at the University of Pennsylvania I dreamed of the opportunity to do something like this because that's what they taught us to do. I had no idea it would be so complicated and take so much time and energy as it did. But the dream has come true, and I am excited to be part of this dream."

DO I HELP DRAIN THE SWAMP OR DO RESEARCH ON ALLIGATORS?

Dr. R. Michael Hulet
Assoc. Prof.
Poultry Science

Today we face crises at every turn. We have various government crises, a crisis of learning for the secondary education of our children; we have other chilren in crisis situations, we have food safety crises that involve our time and attention, and recently for commercial agriculture, we are having a feed grain crisis for the availability of corn, soybeans, and wheat for animals.

I want agriculture to recognize another problem that will affect production practices in the next century.

But you say, "I've enough problems; I'll deal with your problems when I come to them." But I respond, "By then it will be too late." So what's the problem?

The problem is diminishing agricultural research, researchers, and resources for research. Research is the building block that allows progress to be made, problems to be understood, and technology to flourish.

Recently, agriculture has just been content with using the efforts of the past to answer problems and create emerging technological discoveries. Soon we will reach a plateau of efforts, unable to reach the next level of performance because our building blocks have not been replenished.

This year, problems have been identified where the answers could have been readily answered - IF proposed research could have been conducted. The responsibility of research is to examine future problems and provide potential solutions. However, since more and more funding agencies are rather myopic when faced with future problems versus immediate alligator-type problems that seem to snap at their heels, support for independent opportunity seeking research at universities and other institutions has significantly decreased.

Limited funds from granting agencies are simply not adequate for the possibilities of research on pathogens, nutrition, animal behavior, genetic potentials, muscle physiology, immunology, bone structure, operational management theories, or whatever the fruitful area may be that are needed to solve the problems of production agriculture.

Pragmatism leads us to recognize that all research has not been fruitful and that there are a limited amount of resources that must be divided many ways. In Congress, the urge to cut costs and consequently programs has resulted in the loss of many productive federal research programs. Further, the redirecting of federal monies to "designer type" research programs to study popular and politically correct topics has taken away resources that were formerly used for agricultural research.

Lack of resources has pushed some talented researchers into areas other than commercial agriculture because of these trends. If we fail to stem the tide of fewer researchers, fewer students that study agricultural sciences, and less resources to study basic and applied research topics, we will reap the drought of knowledge of our making.

As cattle producers realize, if they sell the heifers, it will cost them several calves and possibly the replacements to maintain the herds; however, if they sell the bulls, the herds have no possibility for growth.

Getting away from the simile that we need to be more "bullish" on agriculture, I would challenge all those involved in agriculture to make an effort to 1) politically support increases in resources for agriculture education and research, 2) contact your state and federal representatives and make them aware of the problem and encourage them to become part of the solution, and 3) encourage youth that have the potential and aptitude to pursue careers in commercial agriculture, agricultural research, or teaching. Help identify the students for university and industry personnel so they they can further encourage them, and possibly, through work/study or internship programs, expose them to various areas of agriculture. Our youth are agriculture's future.

As our place within the world market becomes more clear, we should be stretching forth to firmly grasp the future of agriculture. We can't milk a cow that was sold last year or hope to solve tomorrow's problems with yesterday's answers. Let us together unite in support of agriculture.

Milk Dealers Told Future Uncertain, Northeast Still Strong

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Members of the Pennsylvania Milk Dealers Association and the New York State Dairy Foods Inc. held their annual combined convention Monday and Tuesday at the Hershey Hotel, in Hershey.

The milk dealers attending representing a variety of volume milk processors from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and New Jersey, as well as some representatives of related firms working out of Maryland, Connecticut, Florida, California, Indiana, Vermont, and Illinois.

State Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius welcomed the dealers to their annual convention, discussing the impact of the weather on the industry, and the uncertainties of the Farm Bill and the required changes in consolidating milk marketing orders.

Brosius also talked about the impact of the Delaney Clause and its zero tolerance rule, which he said made sense in 1958 when it was passed, because testing technology then was unable to detect very small amounts of synthetic potential cancer-causing materials.

Now that testing technology has advanced to the point that detection is possible in amounts many times smaller than what could be considered a potential threat, the application of the zero tolerance rule has caused a serious problem for many in the food industry, but especially the dairy industry.

"In the 1950s, the Delaney Clause may have had merit. In 1996, we have the ability to measure amounts as small as one part per quadrillion. Clearly, it is time to reconsider the law in light of today's technology.

"With EPA proposing to revoke tolerances for five of our most commonly used pesiticeds, it is time to get involved. Zero tolerance is no longer a reality."

Brosius also discussed the formation of a dairy stakeholders group to work together in helping usher in a sensible change to the dairy industry in the Northeast.

"As many of you here already know, the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with Penn State has taken the initiative to try to get dairy industry leaders to work together," Brosius said, thanking Pa. Association of Milk Dealers President Lew Galliker, and others for their participation and leadership.

Richard Rzeszotarksi is president of the New York State Dairy Foods Inc.

"Several other of you participated in early, key meetings, and as a result of those meetings, it has been determined that there will be a dairy stakeholders group formed.

"The mission of the group will be, '... to facilitate the visibility and expansion of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania.'" he said. "Issues, among others to be addressed, include export marketing, legislation, education, efficiency, and sustainability — profitability."

Brosius said the cohesion of the dairy industry is important and exciting and should allow the industry participants to address common concerns.

He said that over the past months, in addition to meeting with key dairy leaders, the Department of Agriculture has also met with other leaders in other segments of agriculture to "... get a sense of how we can work together to improve all of our agricultural enterprises.

"It became clear after just a few meetings, that the great need to increase the visibility of agriculture ... is central to the success of all in agriculture."

In introducing U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pittsburgh, Brosius praised him for his support in including a farmland preservation portion, which makes $35 million available to states with existing farmland preservation programs. Since Pennsylvania has such a program, Brosius said, "... we look foward to benefitting from this program."

Santorum told the group, that as Pennsylvania's only member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, he found out quickly how entrenched some of the farm programs were and how protectionistic some of the other senators were of certain programs, depending on their home district agriculture.

He said being on the committee is, "... kind of like the Eagle's song, Hotel California, where they sing, 'You can check out anytime you like, but you can never leave.'"

Santorum said he went into the job on the Ag Committee with the attitude that a free market and a level playing field with respect to regulations would allow the Pennsylvania agriculture sector to compete.

He said it was apparent that consumption within the state and nation was not going to increase (other experts have said that the American market is full and the only room for any sector to expand domestically is to replace another sector) and that exports were the only way to allow agriculture to prosper.

He said the recent resignation of former Kansas U.S. Senator Bob Dole in order to pursue a presidential campaign is a "tale-tell sign of what we might expect to happen for the rest of the year — not much."

However, Santorum did say to expect much political maneuvering and positioning however.

He went on to say that there have been some major reductions made in federal spending and that a Republican plan to balance the budget by 2000 is on track.

Brosius was presented with a gift of appreciation and Galliker praised Santorum, saying that the Pennsylvania and International Milk Dealers met with and supported Santorum in his quest for a U.S. Senate seat, and have been pleased with his performance and hope he keeps doing a good job.

Other speakers during the two-day event included Dairylea CEO Rick Smith, who discussed how the cooperative went from being financially troubled to developing a strong financial position and future and income for its members.

He said that a from 1983 to 1988, the cooperative underwent a period of divestiture, getting rid of nine milk processing plants that were loosing money.

By setting on a course of selling assetts and eliminating debt, and reinvesting in other areas, the cooperative now actually makes more money not selling milk, but through selling services and through financial investments.

He said about 50 percent of the milk sold is used for Class I purposes, and while the cooperative no longer owns or operates any milk plants, it does put up some operating funds for long-term contracts with processors.

U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum addresses the combined convention of the Pa. Association of Milk Dealers and the New York State Dairy Foods Inc. at Hershey Hotel. Seated to Santorum's left include Pa. Agriculture Secretary Charles Brosius and Louis Galliker, president of the Pa. Association of Milk Dealers.

He said balancing has become a very complicated issue. In the past balancing was done seasonally. Today, he said, it is done on weekends, holidays and seasonally.

Dairylea has also tripled the amount of milk pounds sold during the time of change until now.

As far asl the outlook for the changes of the dairy industry in the Northeast, he said he has heard many people complaining about a proposed Northeast Dairy Compact, but he has not heard or seen much in the way of political efforts to fight it.

Referring to another speaker, Penn State University agricultural economist Bob Yonkers, who said he didn't see much change in the dairy operation as a result of the consolidation of milk marketing orders, Smith said he disagreed.

He said he sees a lot of potential change and international players attempting to get involved more in the Northeast dairy industry.

Smith said Dairylea is working to help keep the last Bordon plant in the East, located in Syracuse, N.Y., from going out of business. Smith said there has been interest from some to purchase the plant, including some investors from Japan.

"It is international (the dairy industry) and they are coming here," he said.

He also told milk dealers that they have to start working with their independent suppliers to help keep them in business and to focus not so much on the price of milk received, but on the cost to produce milk and the margin necessary.

Bulk buying inputs for farmers, helping to get reductions in amounts paid for insurance premiums, and other cooperative types of ventures are needed to help keep suppliers profitable.

Others speaking at the convention included motivational speaker Grover Gouker; Earle Holsapple III, a management consultant; Dave Hunley, director of marketing and promotions for the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc.; Keith Kennedy, with Dairy for Ecolab Inc., Food and Beverage Division, who discussed the management of dairy processing waste; and several others from support or promotion organizations who discussed data collection and school foodservice.

risburg newspaper, have a low level of scientific understanding.

The art and practice of science demands making no concrete judgements until evidence is collected and hypotheses proved or disproved through scientific testing that still has to survive peer review.

At best in most situations, science may allow claims that "evidence suggests."

To a general public and body politic desiring cut and dry answers, those who offer certainties often receive more support than those who challenge the public or politicians to understand the realities and complexities of life.

Some of the animal rights groups also tend to adopt names similar to groups long identified as mainstream, or names that hide the group's agend.

For example, it can be argued that the name of an extremist animal rights group, "People For the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA)," would indicate an organization devoted to improving the treatment of animals being used by man.

However, the group's doctrine includes a goal to eliminate all domination of animals by humans.

(PETA has been linked to a terrorist group, the Animal Liberation Front, which has taken responsibility for destroying decades of research work designed to better understand disease and eliminate suffering.)

In other words, this specific animal rights group's goal is to eliminate the practice of keeping pets because training an animal is domination; allowing an animal to become dependent upon a human is domination; etc.

The group developed a slogan several years ago that equates the rights of human boys and girls to those of rats.

There is also a growing concern and suspicion that some of the people involved in establishing animal rights activism groups and related vegetarianism groups are motivated by the potential for steady and large amounts of income.

In Animal People, a publication devoted to animal protectionism, there are reports of many different animal rights groups embroiled in money schemes, in associations with convicted criminals, and mostly in fund-raising opportunities.

The coincidence of the creation of fund-seeking animal rights and anti-agriculture and anti-hunting groups, and the nation's loss of high-paying jobs, along with the increase in unemployed people with college or advanced schooling, has lead some to speculate that those who have been creating some of the non-profit animal rights organizations are doing so because it pays well.

In other words, there seems to be a growing suspicion that those who have been creating such anti-use groups are doing so primarily to raise funds for self-interest.

It has become increasingly apparent that, given the general population's lack of contact with and knowledge of the animal-use industry, it could be easy to distort, malign or create alarming "problems" that people could "help" solve by donating money.

Also, sensationalism has seemed to replace accuracy and perspective in media reporting.

The change from documentable news reporting to talk shows moderated by entertainers, the dependence on non-factual reports, or the use of experts with no peer approval or widely acknowledged discipline qualifications is also suspect in allowing charlatan-type activism and fund seeking to expand.

The non-profit status of some of the more extreme animal rights groups is being questioned.

PRUA does have its own agenda. It is devoted to serving as a catalyst for open discussion of current practices, as a promoter of research-based education, and as a forum for animal-use industry people to discuss their practices and potential for situations which could lead to cruelty.

The organization is devoted to helping the animal use industry identify and solve potential problem areas where animal abuse or cruelty can or could occur.

For more information on the group, call (717) 367-5223.

New Date, Location For MGPA Meeting

EDGEWATER, Md. — The 19th annual meeting of the Maryland Grain Producers Association will be held Thursday, July 25, at the Queen Anne's County 4-H Park on Route 18, between Centreville and Queenstown.

"We had to change both the date and the location," said Jamie Jamison, a Montgomery County grain producer, who is chairman of the '96 annual meeting, "so, please update your calendar."

The meeting had been announced originally for Aug. 15 in conjunction with the annual University of Maryland field day at the Wye Research and Education Center. But when it was discovered that the Queen Anne's County Fair was listed for Aug. 12-17, the university pushed the field day forward a week to Aug. 22.

The grain producers took another tack, choosing instead to go back to their traditional meeting date, the fourth Thursday of July, at their traditional meeting site, the Queen Anne's County 4-H Park. "The 4-H park does have its advantages," Jamison said, "including the air conditioned building where we'll hold our meeting and the trade and research show. Of course, we'll move outside to the picnic grove for the crab feast and barbecue."

Speakers at the meeting will include Jerry Gulke, one of the nation's foremost commodity market analysts and a columnist for "Top Producer" magazine, and Todd Peterson of Pioneeer Seed Company, a precision farming specialist.

Cows, Exotics, Children Thrive On Hammercreek Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — The world heard about Paul Zimmerman when television and newspapers carried reports of him exporting 2,000 ostriches to the The People's Republic of China.

Zimmerman is accustomed to lots of publicity about the exotic animals he raises that are often displayed at fairs, live nativities, petting zoos, and in Noah's Ark sets.

What few people realize is that Zimmerman is a dairy farmer with a herd of 100 milking cows and about 90 replacements. The picturesque farm located across from winding Hammercreek in Lititz is the same farm on which Zimmerman was born.

"You sometimes hear people say that they live in their office, but not too many people can say, like me, that they were born in their office," Zimmerman said of the expansive stone farmhouse where he grew up and now lives with his wife Brenda and children Sonja, 14; Regina, 11, and Darren, 8.

Growing up on the 83-acre farm, Zimmerman remembers he always had an odd assortment of pets. In addition to a pet pig and raccoons, he had a pet crow that awoke him every morning by tapping on his bedroom window. When Zimmerman slept outside on the balcony during the hot summer weather, Inky the crow awakened him by tugging on the corner of his sleeping bag.

Zimmerman recalls his dad selling the dairy herd when he was 12 years old and switching to an all-beef operation. After Zimmerman married in 1978 and farmed in partnership with his father for 10 years, he bought out his dad's share in the partnership and reinstalled a dairy. He built a double six milk parlor and installed total mixed ration computer feeders so that one person can handle the entire milking process.

Although Zimmerman decided to go for a commercial dairy. He does buy good cows but not necessarily registered. Semen from one his bulls is used for commercial breeding. The farm's best Black Star cow is flushed.

Milking cows is what Zimmerman intended as his livelihood for the remainder of his life. But his curiosity and love for animals spurred him on an usual carreer. It happened about eight years ago when Zimmerman purchased a few pot bellied pigs, which he later traded for an ostrich. He eventually added a few llamas, rheas, and emus — just as a hobby.

It came almost as a surprise to Zimmerman that he could make money from his hobby.

An article in the Wall Street Journal told about his breeding the exotic animals. The publicity capitulated him into the public eye and Zimmerman was soon receiving calls from everywhere.

Zimmerman will ship 2,000 ostriches to Hong Kong, which wants to use the birds for meat and the hide for leather.

For a few years, Zimmerman made more money raising exotic animals than he did on his dairy herd. Last year, he said, they were about even.

Like other farming ventures, the exotic animal business has a fluctuating market.

"A lot of people started raising exotics because they wanted to get rich quick. That's not the way to do it. I cringe whenever I hear people say they want to raise them to make money fast," Zimmerman said.

For awhile, supply and demand resulted in emu chicks being sold for $1,000 a piece. Now, that price has dropped to $100 for an emu chick.

"It's a much more realistic market now than then," Zimmerman said. "It was ridiculous then. It caused more speculation, which ruined their (speculators) own party because when prices are high, it narrows the market."

Since prices have dropped so dramatically, people tend to believe raising exotics animals is risky business. But Zimmerman said the profit is still decent and he believes that a stable market will evolve for exotics used for meat. To support his position, he compares the ostrich market to the former turkey market.

Farm-raised turkeys were rare and the meat was unavailable in stores in the 1930s. When a few farmers started toying with the idea of raising turkeys for meat, others mocked the idea. They could not envision people really buying turkey meat. An elderly friend told Zimmerman he remembers paying $3,000 for a pair of turkeys back then to start a breeder flock.

Now turkey is a staple meat in almost every American's diet. The previous outrageous high prices for turkey meat has dropped to 60 cents a pound.

Zimmerman is convinced that the meat market for ostrich will grow. With society's interest in healthful eating, ostrich meat is recommended as a low-cholesterol, high protein alternative. Also, ostriches are considered more enviromentally friendly compared to many high-grain consuming meat animals.

"It's as good as beef," Zimmerman said as he offered ostrich jerkey to family members and guests gathered around his kitchen table.

The family is accustomed to eating ostrich meat in place of beef.

"While it is cooking, it has a different smell than beef, but it tastes similar to it," Brenda said.

"This area is more conservative minded, but England eats a lot of ostrich meat," said Zimmerman, who is working with a corporation on setting up a local slaughter house for the exotic birds.

While ostrich meat in the U.S. sells for $8 to $18 a pound, Zimmerman is confident it will follow the trend of turkeys and become more affordable for Americans.

"Turkey meat filled a niche. It didn't replace beef, chicken, or pork. Ostrich meat will do the same as we learn to be more efficient in raising them," he said.

But meat is not the only market for the long-legged birds.

"Ostrich leather is in great demand," Zimmerman said.

The handsome quill-pinned leather from the bird's body is one of the sturdiest leathers available. Even the skin from the ostriches' legs, which resembles reptile skin, is considered an attractive source for leather.

Both the meat and hide of the ostrich is what appeals to the Chinese who are searching for a cheaper source of protein and leather for their country.

A high-tech incubator is used to hatch the ostrich eggs. The rotating incubator imitates a desert-like climate during the 42 days it takes to hatch an egg.

The Chinese prefer what is called black ostriches instead of the more commonly raised blue necks.

"Blacks are more docile and have better feathers."

Zimmerman learned to care for exotics by subscribing to numerous publications and reading every thing he could on the subject.

He has invested in a rotating incubator that also maintains a desert-like environment.

Normally, the birds would roll the eggs over several times daily. The rotating incubator allows the embryo to develop normally. It takes about 10 days to tell if an egg is fertile and 42 days before hatching.

Zimmerman, who gives the appearance of being an eternal optimist with an abundant supply of enery, found that signing the contract for the 2,000 exotic birds to be shipped in four shipments was only the beginning of the red tape, obstacles, and uncertainy involved in the export business.

Before ostriches may be transported, they need to be quarantined with USDA supervision. Embryos are swabbed with antibodies and placed in an incubator. After birth, the chicks are isolated for 14 days when blood is drawn and tested for such bird viruses as avian influenza, Newcastle, and Salmonella enteriditis.

The paperwork never ceases. It includes providing required certificates, documentation, vet confirmations, transfer permits, and USDA clearance — which cost Zimmerman $50 an hour.

"It's a fiasco to line up air lines for transporting the birds," Zimmerman said.

Airlines keep making promises, then raising their quotes. It cost about $40,000 to transport the first shipment of 23 ostriches shipped in January compared to the $20,000 projected.

International law requires that a bird handler and two veterinarians must accompany every shipment. On the first shipment, Zimmerman went along as the bird handler. The birds were nervous from the unusual, changing surroundings.

Zimmerman, who pampers his birds, had taken extra precautions to ensure that the birds would be properly loaded in the cargo jet. He continued to stress the importance of keeping the birds cool and placed in an area that was no warmer than 20 degrees celsius. Instead, the birds were placed under a heater going full blast. One died almost immediately, and the others needed to be treated with electrolytes to revive them.

The 30-hour flight was followed with a 30-hour trip by barge. Zimmerman was not allowed to accompany the birds on their trip on the barge. He instructed the caretakers on how to put slices of apple in the bottom of a bucket to entice the ostriches to drink water while traveling on the barge.

Due to misunderstandings in communications between the authorities in the U.S. and in China, Zimmerman almost saw his deal collapse after he was on Chinese soil. Most people would have given up and gone home, but Zimmerman struggled through the legal red tape and communication problems to see the birds through to the end.

"Hong Kong is the worst country for its super strict law enforcement," Zimmerman said.

Fortunately, Zimmerman had photocopies of the international rules on exporting with him to counteract the misinterpreting of the laws by Hong Kong authorities.

Finally the birds arrived at the appointed destination.

"It was the most exhilarating moment after not seeing the birds for 30 hours to run to the dock and see the birds standing upright and walking right out," Zimmerman said.

After the birds were delivered, Zimmerman was dined and put in the most expensive hotel. When his hosts discovered that he liked shrimp, they provided shrimp for all three meals every day. He was adventurous enough to eat sea snails and eel, but couldn't stomach the partially hatched eggs considered a delicacy in that country.

"I haven't acquire a taste for that yet," he said. "If you are a real Chinese, you will select a snake at a restaurant, slit it and suck out the blood."

While eating, he heard the loud squawks of chickens in the next room.

"My curiosity was killing me, so I went out and saw a girl cleaning chicken. She chopped it into one-inch piece and brought it into where we were eating and dropped it into the soup. Everyone eats from the same dish. Zimmerman attempted to keep an open mind, but when he fished out a chicken head, he quickly let it drop back.

Zimmerman said that some question his business transaction with a repressive country. But he said, "I'm making available cheaper food. Just because a minority ruling the country is wrong, we don't want to keep people from eating."

Zimmerman found the Chinese motto of "Equality for All," as a mockery. Five percent of the ruling class have control over 95 percent of the people. Whatever class you are born into is where you remain. Questioned why restaurants were so cold and told it was to discourage the poor from coming in. Only those who could afford coats could be comfortable in the restaurants.

Zimmerman attributes the success of the export to the help of Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius and Gov. Tom Ridge's commitment to opening new farm markets on the global level.

Zimmerman's life is not without its frustration. In the last three years he has developed a severe allergy to cows, reindeer, and goats. So much so that he employs a full-time herdsman to run the dairy operation. Even with medication, a five-minute walk through the barns results in stuffiness and an itchy rash.

So far, he is not allergic to the ostrich.

While his wife finds doing the bookwork for the exotics and cows intriguing, she is quick to state that as far as she is concerned, "I'd be perfectly content without the animals."

The Zimmermans cannot raise all the ostriches themselves. Under the agreement with Hong Kong, Zimmerman will purchase more ostriches, arrange for testing and quarantine, and deliver them to port for international shipment until he has exported 2,000 birds through 1997.

With more possibilities opening for exporting, Zimmerman cautions, "Farmers who love animals are more inclined to make money raising exotics than someone who is doing it to make money quick. You've got to love working with animals."

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

The wide, open space still startles me.

Know how you get accustomed to something and then one day it's not there?

Of the original nine Norway maples surrounding our old farmhouse when we moved in, eight of the towering, venerable old trees remain. One, diseased, sickly and headed for eventual demise anyway, we took out so long ago I can barely remember it.

While messy, maples are tough, durable trees. Mother Nature does most of their pruning, supplying us with plentiful kindling twigs, occasional firewood, and even a broken window on a very rare occasion. Her methods, though effective, aren't too neat. But the numerous birds and our squirrel family aren't particular.

Our lone Norway spurce has doubled in height in the last three decades, though parts of its upper growth look rather unhealthy this spring. Some of the upper branches have no needles; I have no clue why.

Then we have the willows. Or had the willows.

The first two were planted when the kids were just small, nearly 30 years ago. One was a plain, garden-variety weeping willow, the other a corkscrew willow, with curving limbs. A pair of mourning doves nested a couple of years in the smaller weeping willow, tolerating the treehouse platform the kids nailed together in its branches. Various birds claimed the tall corkscrew willow as a nest site.

Later, we added a few more weeping willows: one near where the fishpond has since been added and a couple adjacent to the dairy barn. The Canada geese regularly lounge under the pond willow during hot summer days and an occasional summertime ailing cow will recuperate in the airy shade of the barn willows.

A few Mays ago, on a lovely sunny day with nary a breeze blowing, I heard a crunching sound in the back yard. The weeping willow had simply fallen over, the root system apparently the victim of some sort of root rot.

Late March's ice storm wreaked havoc on the pond and barn willows, snapping the tops and various side branches from them, leaving them crooked and cockeyed-looking. Leaves have softened their wounded appearance but it will take years to restore symmetry to their silhouettes.

The maples also lost numerous limbs and branches to the ice, none fortunately where they did much damage. And the corkscrew willows lost a large section that collapsed from its side. But worst harm had been done last year, when some disease, some pest, some whatever, killed about half the corkscrew willow. This year, only a small fragment of the tree' skeleton sprouted leaves.

"We probably should take that out," I suggested to The Farmer some time ago. Even last summer, I'd been uneasy when mowing beneath it, for fear a large dead section would tumble down and crease my skull.

Last week one morning, to my puzzlement, the big tractor came creeping into the backyard; next thing I knew, the corkscrew willow was shaking. But it didn't give up easily and took some skillful maneuvering with the equipment to finally push the dying tree from the ground. All that remains is a ragged section of lawn where the ground is pushed back into its gaping root gap.

And the blank spot when I look out the east kitchen window.

The willow is in tree heaven, a spot in the woods where the birds can nest and the squirrels scamper through its limbs for a few more years, as it returns back to the earth from which it sprang forth.

I miss it. Kinda' like you would miss a long-time friend that has passed on.

Preventing Spring Storm Damage

Thunderstorms can wreak havoc with your landscape. Often breaking limbs and trees are uprooted.

Many times damaged trees are removed rather than saved by corrective pruning. This information adapted from the National Arbor Day Foundation may help you and your trees "weather the storm."

- Think ahead when planting trees. Don't plant too close to buildings or utility wires. Planting groups will help prevent trees from being blown over.
- Avoid planting trees species with brittle wood such as elms, willows, Bradford pears (the older varieties are particularly susceptible to storm damage), poplars and silver maples.
- Prune trees when they are young to develop a strong branching pattern.
- Annually prune dead and weak limbs. Try to achieve a well-shaped tree that lets the wind pass through it rather than catching it like a sail.
- Keep trees healthy by watering, fertilizing, and protecting the soil from compaction.

After the Storm

- The first step in cleaning up is to assess the damage. Notify municipal authorities if street trees are damaged. Don't try to remove tree limbs from downed wires; contact the utility company.
- Select a competent, qualified arborist to remove or repair trees if you will not be doing the work yourself. In many cases, you will require professional help; be sure you have a clear understanding about who will remove debris and whether or not the price includes stump removal.
- For appearance and to maintain a good center of gravity, look for limbs to remove that are opposite broken ones.
- Young trees (under 25' in height) that are partially blown over can often be saved. Remove soil on the uprooted side. Straighten the tree and replace the soil. Stake the tree and water well.

To repair torn bark, use a chisel or a sharp knife to smooth the edges of torn bark back to where it is attached to the tree. Shape the tear into an eclipse and round the ends of the wound. Keep the wound as narrow as you can to speed wound closing. Pruning paint may make you feel better but will not help the tree.

Right Tree in the Right Place Workshop

A Community Tree Workshop on July 9 at Penn State-York will provide planting and pruning tips and care for street trees. Susan Barton, an Extension Specialist from the University of Delaware will discuss landscaping below the ground/how to care for tree roots.

Cost is $18 which includes lunch for the 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. conference. The conference hosts include Penn State Cooperative Extension, the Central PA Tree Association and others. Tours include a discussion of tree care by urban foresters in downtown York and a commercial arborist at York College. For more information, contact Bill Elmendord, School of Forest Resources at (814) 863-7941.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-8408.

Juicy berries and whipped cream tucked between two tender shortcakes is a welcome dessert for warm weather. But shortcake isn't the only way to serve berries. Take a look at these recipes for some juicy eating.

1 cup cranberries, coarsely chopped
¼ cup chopped pecans or English walnuts
Powder sugar glaze, optional

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Spray loaf pan with vegetable spray.

In a large mixing bowl, place and stir together first five ingredients.

In a smaller bowl, place egg substitute, milk, applesauce, and zest. Stir together then stir into the dry ingredients, stirring just until combined.

LOST MUFFINS WITH SOUR CREAM AND STRAWBERRIES

1 pint fresh strawberries, hulled
½ cup sugar
3 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Pinch salt
2 English muffins, split
1½ tablespoon unsalted butter
½ cup sour cream.

Set aside four whole unblemished strawberries for garnish and slice the remainder.

Place the sliced strawberries in a small bowl, sprinkle with sugar, toss to coat, and set aside.

In a large shallow dish, combine the eggs, milk, vanilla, and salt. Beat together lightly.

Place the muffin halves split side down in the milk mixture and let soak for 1-2 minutes, pricking them gently with a fork. Turn the muffins and soak the other side.

In a large skillet, melt the butter over low heat and then increase heat to 350 degrees. Add the muffins and cook until golden brown, about 2 minutes. Turn and cook 1-2 minutes on other side. Muffins should be crispy brown and golden on the outside and somewhat custard like on the inside. Put muffins on serving plates and top each half with sliced strawberries and a generous amount of sour cream. Garnish each with a whole strawberry and serve immediately.

Memorial Day kicks of the hot dog season.

Did you know that adults' most popular topping for hot dogs is mustard (60%) while ketchup ranked a distant second by 38%.

The Chicago Dog is served on a poppy seed bun, topped with yellow mustard, raw onion, pickle relish, sliced tomato, and celery salt.

In Kansas City, franks are served with sauerkraut and melted Swiss cheese and served on a sesame seed bun.

New Yorkers hunger for hot dogs with steamed onions and pale yellow mustard.

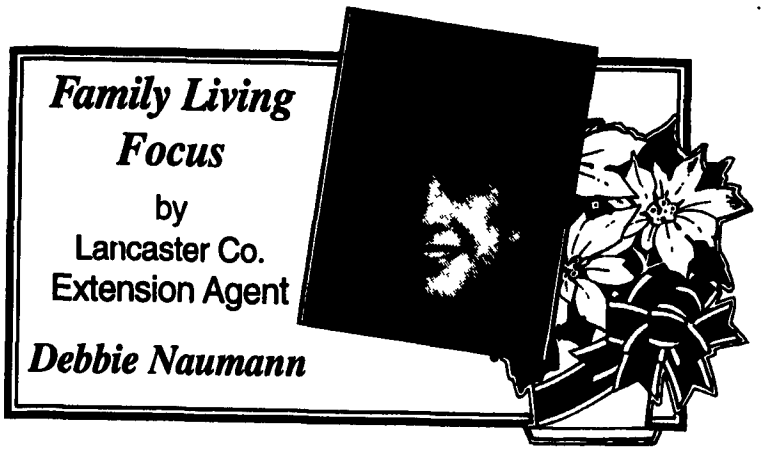
Hot dogs dragged through the garden is what Southerners call the preparation of their favorite franks, meaning they get a coleslaw-type topping of cabbage, onions, carrots, mayonnaise and spices.

Hatfield Quality Meats, a leading East Coast manufacturer and purveyor of hot dogs, offers the following ideas for serving American's favorite food.

Grilled Hot Dog Pizzas: Before grilling, make 5 crosswise cuts almost through each hot dog (so heat will curl it into rounds). Place grilled dogs on English muffin halves topped with pizza sauce, Italian seasoning, and shredded cheese.

Hobo Franks & Beans: In well-sealed foil packets, grill 1-inch hot dog pieces mixed with canned baked beans, canned Mexicali corn and barbecue sauce.

L&T Cheese Franks: Slit hot dogs lengthwise before grilling; grill hot dogs. When about halfway done, insert slices of cheese into upright slit. Cook until cheese melts, serve in buns with sliced lettuce and tomato.



FAMILY FUN IN THE SUMMERTIME

Summer is coming! While we envision our children being full of energy and ideas for summertime fun, many children will declare boredom within days of the onset of their summer vacation.

At this time of year, parents ought to be giving some thought to what their children will be doing this summer. A little advance planning and family creativity can help make summertime fun last throughout the season. It begins with a few simple steps to help parents and children get started on the right path to family fun.

One of the best ways to begin planning for summertime fun is to hold a family meeting. At the meeting, each family member can share their own ideas for summer activities that they would like to participate in. This list may include summer camps, family vacations, community events, or recreational activities. Once a list of activities is generated, consideration can then be given to each activity, including the time, cost, transportation arrangements needed to carry it out, and the overall "do-ability" of the activity. Individual and family activities can then be voted upon and decided as a family.

For those who may need some help getting started on a list of summertime activities for children and family members, here are some ideas:

1. Hobbies/Collections. All children can learn new talents and explore their creative side by taking up a hobby that they enjoy. Children can try woodworking, cooking, playing a musical instrument, or photography. Collections such as bugs, rocks, stamps, coins or butterflies may also be appealing to youngsters of all ages.

2. Recreation/sports programs. Explore the recreation programs in your area, at summer playgrounds or community centers. Check out local swimming pools, basketball and soccer leagues, and other sports programs that may be of interest to your child.

3. Community service. There are many opportunities for youth to become involved in volunteer work. Contact area hospitals, nursing homes, churches, or community centers for opportunities that may be available.

4. Indoor/outdoor gardens. Children can learn much from watching plants grow both indoors and outdoors. Start with easy-to-grow seeds that grow rapidly, such as radishes, tomato, and lettuce. Teach your child about daily care and let him/her take full responsibility for the garden.

5. Solitary activities. Many children will find great enjoyment in having their own library card to choose books for summer reading. Others may find working on jigsaw puzzles of interest, or keeping a daily journal of their summertime experiences.

6. Household jobs. Children can learn much responsibility by becoming involved in household jobs such as laundry, cleaning, washing the car, and even preparing dinner on occasion. Assign weekly jobs for all family members to accomplish.

7. Family Activities. Some ideas to consider:

- Community visits to local historic landmarks, museums, airports, zoos, etec.
- Weekly Dinner Themes (i.e. finger food night, ethnic dinners, leftover night)
- Family picnics in the backyard or at a local park
- Contests (watermelon seed-spitting, water balloon toss, obstacle course)
- Making homemade ice cream, sun tea, or refreshing summer punches
- Nature hikes, bike rides, volleyball, swimming and other outdoor activities
- Indoor family pajama party or backyard campout
- Clean-the-Basement/Attic Parties, Neighborhood Clean-ups
- Family vacations

Once activities are chosen, they can then be recorded on a family calendar posted in a prominent location of the home for all to see, such as the kitchen or family room. Color-coded markers can be used for each family member to write in those activities that he/she will be participating in throughout the summer. As an example, young Johnny could use a blue marker to record the dates of his 4-H club meetings, band camp in July, and weekly take-out-the-trash responsibilities. A family calendar can be a great way for family members to stay organized throughout the summer so that important dates and activities do not get overlooked.

Summertime is a such a wonderful season for children and families to enjoy the beauty of the outdoors and the healthful benefits of leisure activities. Make the most of your family time this summer by planning now!

Beef Prices Increase While Producer Income Declines

AMES, Iowa — Americans paid an average of 4.9% more for their beef products since 1989, while prices their producers received fell by more than 15% in the same period.

"The share of the retail food dollar producers receive has declined in the last seven years from 59% to 47%," states Gene Paul, National Farmers president.

As feed grain prices continue to rise, and producer prices continue to decline, National Farmers is concerned about the future of America's independent livestock producers.

"The trend in packer industry concentration is a real concern to us," explains Paul. "Three or four meat packing firms control a large percentage of the market, and as competition is eliminated, prices will be affected."

"We believe we need to resist the current trend, and maintain a marketplace that is fair, open, and competitive," states Paul. "Americans have always believed in fairness, and when they're given an equal chance to compete, a stronger and healthier system always emerges."

As competition is eliminated in purchasing fed cattle, hogs and sheep, the negative influence also affects prices for feeders and breeding stock.

"When there are so few buyers. common sense will tell you that the market as a whole will be biased against the seller," states Richard Ellinghuysen, director of Livestock for National Farmers.

"If the industry truly wants to provide the incentive for the producer, then the producers share should at least remain the same, not decrease."

"Producers are told they need to produce a good quality product, even improve it, so that beef can compete with poultry," Ellinghuysen explained. "But if the farmers share of the food dollar has gone down 15% during the last seven years, what kind of incentive is there for producers to invest more money in their operation."

Next week I'll be picking sugar peas and then the summer work begins. The hull peas will be a little later. Many of my seeds were put in the ground rather late this year as our ground was too wet.

Earlier when I hoed the peas our two grandsons followed after me in the rows. They amused themselves picking up odd small pieces of red crocks that were probably thrown there over 100 years ago. They found pieces of slate and some coal. Then I gave a box to keep them in on the back porch. This is an old garden as I found a few very old coins previously.

During a recent trip to Toscarora Lake in Schuylkill Co. we ran into a lot of rain. Here at home it was nice weather but when we arrived we had to sit in the truck for two hours until the rain stopped. Then we put the boat in the lake but forgot to put the plug in the bottom of the boat. My husband told me that he knows "how to sink a boat." We dumped our worms out of the coffee can and started to bail and got most of the water out. We had a nice boat ride but no fish were biting.

On Mother's Day I received several flower plants. There is a place for six hanging baskets on our porches. Now I have beautiful fuchsias in two of them. In the others I had already put red geraniums and ivy. Philip brought red roses in the afternoon and visited with the grandchildren. A visit can be just as nice as a bouquet of flowers. Another daughter sent gifts from Atlanta and there were several cards. I'm glad that all six still remember where their roots are on Mother's Day.

ANSWER — Jean Nestler, Halifax, wanted a recipe similar to Kraft's Dipping Sweet 'N Sour Sauce. Thanks to Martha Stoltzfus, Paradise, for sending a recipe for her favorite sauce, which she had clipped from this column a few years ago.

Sweet And Sour Sauce

2 cups mayonnaise
2 cups sugar
½ cup catsup
2 teaspoons mustard
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup oil
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ cup vinegar
4 tablespoons water
Blend all ingredients until smooth.

ANSWER — Pauline Fox, no address given, wanted to know where to buy a good rhubarb cookbook and recipes for rhubarb. The best source we know about is Kitchen Kettle Village of Intercourse, which holds an annual Rhubarb Fest — it's today. But, you may contact them for recipes. Also, "Rhubarb Cooking for all Seasons," compiled by LaDonna M. Thompson, has more than 150 recipes. You can get a copy by sending $6, postage included, to Rhubarb Cookbook, Box 392, Hopkins, MN 55343.

Here's a recipe for your enjoyment.

Strawberry Rhubarb Jam Cookies

1 cup shortening
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 cups flour
Strawberry rhubarb jam
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup rolled oats

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add vanilla. Add eggs and beat until fluffy. Sift flour to measure 4 cups and add salt, baking soda, and baking powder. Sift again and add rolled oats. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk. Mix thoroughly. Chill dough in refrigerator for several hours. Roll out on lightly floured board to ¼ -inch thickness. Cut with a round cutter and spread with filling.

Spread each cookie with jam. Cover with another piece of cookie dought and fasten edges securely. Place 1-inch apart on greased cookie sheet, and bake at 375 degrees until golden. Makes 2½ to 3 dozen cookies.

On The Farm Petting Zoo At Hammercreek Exotics

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — With zebras, ostriches, reindeer, and an assortment of other animals, it's no wonder that friends of the Zimmerman children always want to come and visit them.

Eleven-year-old Regina said, "I'm happy when my friends come, but sometimes, I do wish they'd want to do something else here besides play with the animals."

It isn't that Regina doesn't like the exotic animals for which the family's Hammercreek farm is noted. She does. In fact, she wants to grow up to be a farmer just like her dad. But she also likes to run, swim, and play games.

Regina and her eight-year-old brother Darren and sister Sonja, 14, help feed many of the animals on the farm. In addition to those listed earlier, they also have 10 miniature horses, 18 goats, 5 sheep, 2 dogs, 10 cats, 15 rabbits, two turkeys, peacocks, a crow, and even an alligator.

While many children sleep with a dog or cat, Darren has the distinction of sleeping with a zebra. For two weeks after the zebra was born, Darren curled up beside the zebra in the pen so that he could give it a bottle during the night. Sometimes, Darren's dad came outside in the morning to find Darren fast asleep and the zebra nibbling his toes.

For a month the zebra followed Darren everywhere just like a pet puppy. When Darren went inside the house, the zebra would peep in the window at him. Impatiently, the zebra would bang on the door while waiting for Darren to come outside. The zebra even went swimming with the children. As the zebra got bigger, he had to be penned up because visitors could get knocked down by the friendly, rambunctious zebra.

The Zimmermans removed the baby zebra from its mother so that they could tame the baby; otherwise, it would become wild.

Many of the Zimmermans' animals are taken to petting zoos, to fairs, and used in live nativity scenes or for Noah Ark displays. Regina and Darren usually help out at the petting zoos.

Darren said that he thinks his favorite animal is buffalo. At one time, they had 20 of them on the farm, but now they don't have any.

They also had two camels named Job and Israel, but recently sold them to a circus. The Zimmermans plan to add camels to their collection again. They also would like to buy giraffes.

Over the years, the children have taken an odd assortment of the animals to school.

"My favorite animal is the killer whale, but we can't have that here, said Sonja, who would like to be a marine biologist but won't, "because there too many of those already."

There's never a dull moment with so many animals to play with at Hammercreek Exotices. Regina and Darren say that their friends are always eager to visit the farm to play with the animals.

The whole family enjoys water skiing. Regina attended a Florida camp for one week to learn how to "barefoot water ski."

"She torpedoes through the water," her dad Paul said.

Although Regina thinks it would be fun to work with a team on putting on a water show, she said, "but I really want to be a farmer."

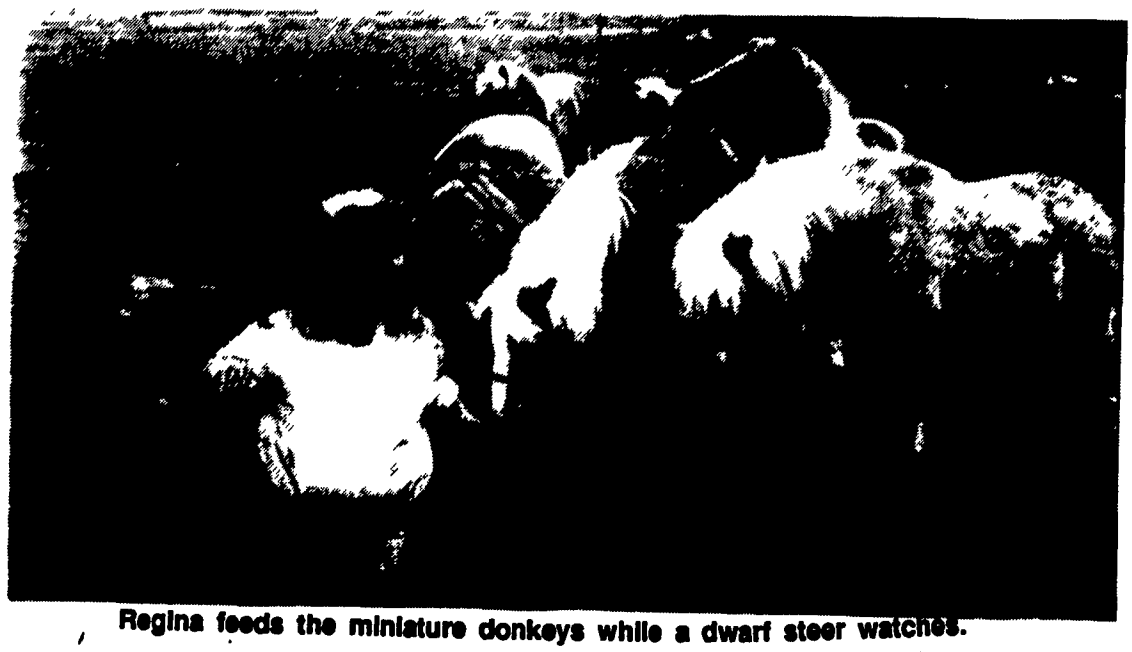
Although Darren also likes to water ski, he prefers to snow ski.

No doubt the children inherited some of their love for sports from their parents, Paul and Brenda. Their dad bungee jumps, parachutes, and "will do anything once," he said.

Right across the road from the farm is the Hammercreek. It's a spot that Darren and Regina spend many hours. They also like to jump on the big trampoline in their yard and swing on the barn swing that hangs from the rafters.

Darren slept with the zebra when it was a baby. It became so tame, it followed him everywhere.

Regina and Darren hand feed this crow and hope it will become as tame as the one their dad had while growing up. His pet crow awakened him every morning by tapping on the bedroom window.



Regina feeds the miniature donkeys while a dwarf steer watches.

Down To Earth Catering Business Blossoms

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MANNS CHOICE (Bedford Co.) — Elizabeth Gibbs cannot remember when she did not like to cook.

Knock on her front door and you will be wafted by the scent of just baked banana muffins and freshly brewed gourmet coffee.

Prior to moving to Bedford County, the Gibbs family lived in an area of Viriginia so remote, it made rural Bedford County look like uptown.

It was there Elizabeth began growing vegetables, herbs, and flowers and selling them to local restaurants. Her dream, however, was to own her own catering business.

Although sparsely populated, Bedford County is a growing area in tune with the arts and trendy cultures that offer that kind of opportunity.

Her career began to take shape about a year ago when the local Arts Council opened a catering job for bids. Elizabeth got it!

"I love fixing food for that kind of group," she says. "I like to do simple, elegant, different, and healthy types of food. I try to compliment texture and color and appeal to as many senses as possible."

Kathryn and Elizabeth do some menu planning from one of her favorite Martha Stewart books. Ian is coloring in the background.

Maddie, Elizabeth, and Ian check the growth of seedlings started on the windowsill.

Sample menus cause the saliva glands to work overtime, for instance:

Asaparagus wrapped with Proscuitto
Salmon Mousse on Cucumber Rounds
Display of Fresh Fruit and Cheese
Wild Mushroom Turnovers
Sausage Puff Pastry Pinwheels

Blini with Sour Cream and Caviar
Assorted Miniature Pastries

A MID SUMMER NIGHT'S PICNIC
$12.50 per person
Gazpacho
Grilled Lemon Chicken
Pesto Potato Salad
Jalapeno Corn Muffins
Macadamia White Chocolate Chunk Brownies

Or, there was her recent favorite, a vegetarian meal for a Mother-Daughter Banquet.

"I served Ricotta Spinach Turnovers, Oven Roasted New Potatoes, Waldorf Salad, Fresh Rolls and Butter, and Strawberry/Peach Shortcake," she says. "And, it went over very well.

"I use as many fresh ingredients as possible."

This necessitates growing many of her own vegetables, herbs, and even cut flowers for the table. Plants are grown in a 4x50 foot raised beds with many of the seedlings started on the windowsill of her sunny, spacious kitchen.

"This year I've planted some heirloom seeds," says this petite mother of three. "I like the stories behinds the seeds and think it is the best way to increase the quality of plants."

Elizabeth also dries herbs which she sells through the arts council and at a local gift shop. She creates colorful, taste appealing vinegars by adding herbs or raspberries. "I do buy the vine-

Youngsters Learn Fitting, Showing Techniques

KAREN BUTLER

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — Members of the Carroll County 4-H dairy club were treated to a fitting and showing workshop recently at Winsor Manor Farm, home of Jason and Donna Myers and family. Kelly and Kristin Myers, the Myers' daughters, hosted the clinic.

The Myers family milk between 65 and 70 head on their farm, and also concentrate on merchandising their cows. Jason is the current president of the Maryland Holstein Association.

Fifteen-year-old Kristin is involved in dairy judging and the dairy bowl. She was first senior at the state dairy bowl, and her county team won there.

Kelly, age 18, was a National distinguished junior semifinalist for her record book this year, and will go on to the National convention in Texas this June. She will attend Virginia Technical Institute this fall, majoring in dairy science.

Farming Is Wedding Theme For Former Pa. Lamb & Wool Queen

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

GOUGLERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Remember Amy Sue Eshelman, former Pennsylvania lamb and wool queen and a beef representative?

She just got hitched to David Kevin O'Reilly and moved West to set up farming in Chardon, Ohio.

The couple met at Penn State University from where Amy was graduated in January with a degree in dairy and animal science. After O'Reilly, a graduate of Ohio State University, earned a master's degree in ruminent nutrition at Penn State, the two married and headed for O'Reilly's family farm.

O'Reilly will work full-time on the 350-acre grain farm and part-time as an agriculture extension agent for Ohio State University. Amy will work full time as a livestock agent for Ohio State.

With all these ties to farming, it is not surprising that the two wanted agriculture to be a strong focus during their wedding celebration. They wanted the day to be unique, one that reflected their efforts.

Amy, who lives on a farm in the village of Gouglersville — the only house with a corn bin in the front yard — started preparations early. Last summer she grew lots of flowers to dry and arrange as bridal bouquets and to attach to the straw hats the bridal attendants carried. She also arranged flowers in baskets and in Mason jars, holding candles for the reception tables. Instead of birdseed for guests to throw at the couple, Amy tied wheat heads in netting for the guests to throw.

She also made her own bridal gown and flowered dresses for the attendants. Those were skills she picked up from the 4-H sewing club.

The wedding invitations and program guides were illustrated with sheep in a pastoral setting.

While the couple planned every detail of the wedding, they were in for a surprise when they walked out the church door. Parked in front of the church was a John Deere tractor pulling a wagon full of junk. The wagon held gifts for the couple to start up housekeeping such as a live goat, a sheep, some chickens, and a bed frame.

The couple rode in the delapidated wagon through the town to

This is one of the layers of the wedding cake. The realistic-looking ground was made by crumbling together peanut butter and confectioners' sugar.

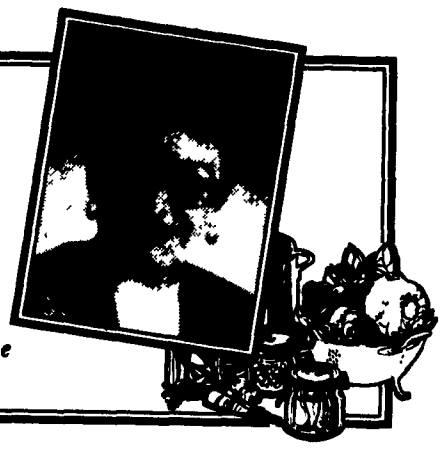
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Deli meats and sausages taste great, are convenient and are versatile. But did you know that they also offer a lesson in food history. Curing, salting, pickling and smoking are among the oldest forms of preserving foods, dating back more than 3,500 years. European immigrants introduced cured meats and sausages to America and the industry began to flourish in the late 1800's.

A sampling of deli meats today showcases an array of traditional sausages and deli meats as well as the newer lower fat and reduced sodium products made possible by modern day technology. And what an array of choices! It's estimated that more than 500 types of sausages and deli meats are available for American palates.

Deli meats excite the tastebuds! Meats are cured and smoked for appearance and flavor variations. This process also extends storage time. But convenience in creating quick meals and snacks is another reason that deli meats and sausages find their way into shopping carts. Along with these quick-to-serve products come high-quality protein and essential nutrients needed by the body each day.

Deli meats and sausages contribute valuable nutrients to a balanced diet. They are an excellent source of high quality protein, B-vitamins (thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, pantothenic acid, pyridoxine and B-12), zinc and iron.

The new nutrition labeling format, established in 1990 by the FDA and the USDA, helps shoppers determine the nutrition content of a product and makes it easier to compare products.

Shoppers looking for lower fat or reduced sodium deli meats and sausages will find a variety of choices which have resulted from consumer interest and demand. For example, reduced fat or sodium varieties are available for bologna, ham, roast beef, pastrami, corned beef, bacon, Canadian-Style bacon and smoked sausages to name a few.

Proper handling and storing will preserve the flavor and quality of deli meats and sausages. When shopping, select refrigerated deli meats and sausages last before checking out. At home, store them promptly in their original packages in the coldest part of the refrigerator (36 to 40 degrees F.). Unopened, vacuum-sealed packages can be stored in the refrigerator up to two weeks; once opened, use within 1 week. If the package has a freshness date ("use-by" or "sell-by"), follow it. Deli meats purchased from the service deli should be stored in the orignal wrapping if the wrapping is airtight and holds in moisture. Otherwise, rewrap or store in a sealed plastic food storage container.

Deli meats such as fresh pork sausages, smoke sausage links and patties, luncheon meats and frankfurters, can be kept in the freezer for up to 2 months; bacon can be frozen for 1 month. Be sure meats are tightly sealed in moisture and air impermeable materials, such as freezer paper; heavy-duty aluminum foil and polyethylene films and store at 0 degrees F or colder. When ready to use, thaw in the refrigerator. Fully-cooked hams and other sausages can be frozen up to 2 months, but freezing may reduce flavor and change texture.

If purchasing a tray of ready-to-eat deli meats and cheese, refrigerate promptly. Don't leave tray at room temperature for more than 2 hours. When entertaining you may want to purchase several small platters, rather than one large platter, and keep back up trays refrigerated until needed.

gar," she admits. "Then, I make my own additions."

Enjoying her new home, Elizabeth would like to help the area flourish and promotes other local products when possible.

For instance, a Mother's Day Gift Basket which she offered through the Chamber of Commerce included candies made at Bedford Candies and handmade glycerine creme soap also made locally.

In the summer, her marketing will increase by offering her fresh produce at the local Farmer's Market. "My best seller there is bagged salad," she says. "The most difficult part of making a salad is cutting up all those vegetables, so I do that in advance and it is a good seller."

"I also found cut flowers arranged in appealing bouquets to be attractive to customers."

Her best source of advertising is word of mouth.

"I prefer smaller parties," she admits. I could make Hors d'Ouvres for hundreds but prefer no more than 50 for a sit-down dinner. But, no matter what or how many I'm serving, the most important ingredient in a successful catering job is timing. It all has to be ready to serve at once and that can be very difficult."

"I don't ever expect this to be something at which I will get rich," Elizabeth admits. "But, I do hope to make a decent living and know that I will love what I'm doing."

She and her husband, Ken, have three children, Maddie, 9 (the official taster who will try anything); Kathryn, 6; and Ian, 3.

The family also has several Arabian and sheltie horses.

learn something new, says club leader Debbie Hoff. Also leading the club is Crystal Dell.

There are approximately 42 members in the county-wide club. Members have done a number of service projects, including collecting mittens, hats, and scarves for the needy and also collecting books to donate to a daycare center. Last year the club placed third in the Hoard's Dairyman judging contest.

Danny McKenzie was on hand to demonstrate the finer points of hoof trimming, body clipping, and getting the topline right to the youngsters. Kristin's heifer, Krisco, looked lovely after the morning's session of grooming.

Jessica Fritz, club president, is on the state dairy judging team that will be going to Europe this June, and was just crowned Carroll County dairy princess.

Participating in the workshop were Kelly and Kristin Myers, Ashley and Brandi Burdette, Danielle Garst, Josh Hoff, Davis Schwartzbeck, and Danny McKenzie.

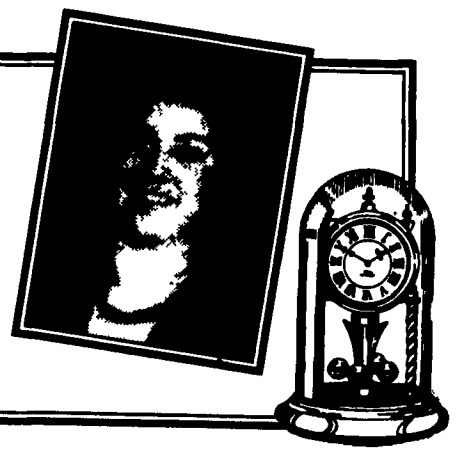
Taking Time by Rebecca Escott



Nurturing The Scientist In Each Of Us

Springtime is a great time to explore the world and nurture the budding scientific curiosity in each of us. I keep waiting for it to warm up and dry off so I can get outside and do some exploring. But even the rainy, cold days offer opportunities for a science excursion.

Learning science starts at home with the most basic activities. As children learn to wash, cook, and use tools, they are developing important science skills. Although people stereotype science and think that it includes only special labs, white coats, and test tubes, science is a much broader field than that.

Each time you turn under soil or the compost pile, you are putting science principles to work. You also are experiencing science principles when you negotiate a car around a hairpin curve. These principles were discovered and proved as people practiced science.

Science is the process of observing change; exploring and understanding cause and effect, estimating, measuring, using scale, building from a model; and then sharing that information with others. We all can dabble in science without spending a lot of money or buying special equipment.

Biologist Rachel Carson said, "If a child is to keep alive his inborn sense of wonder, he needs the companionship of at least one adult who can share it, rediscovering with him the joy, excitement and mystery of the world we live in."

Feed your curiosity about the animal world, take a child by the hand and wander outside. Pause to watch a spider spin its web. Come back later. Has she captured any food in it? Ask a vet to show you an animal X-ray so you can see how bones are joined. When you get a cut, follow the directions on the first aid cream. Record how many days it takes to heal the wound or observe the process of the skin mending itself.

In the plant world, science is at work too. As you sprout seeds or watch a flower bud and bloom, you are witnessing plant biology. Science is also at work when breads mold or food scraps rot. Describe the stages of growth and decomposition that plants and animals go through? Read a thermometer or a barometer. Ask yourself or a youngster what this means about the weather outside. Hang clothes to dry on a line. Think about what principles of science allow the drying to take place. Each time you explore, you participate in the scientific process.

A person can explore the laws of energy and conservation in many areas around the house. Experiment with kitchen magnets. Watch these tiny forces work. Each time you pick up a kitchen or carpentry tool, think about how energy is being conserved. What makes this tool work more effectively than crude force? Does a longer handle make the task easier? Why, why not? Review your home's water usage. Can you reduce the amount you use? Roll objects down a smooth incline. Which one goes the farthest? The fastest?

Also "explore" the world beyond your neighborhood. Watch the national news or correspond with friends in another area of the country and find out about how the climate differs from location to location. Did you know that Mason City is the coldest town in Iowa? People need to plug their cars in during winter months in order to keep them functioning.

Don't forget to look in the sky and to investigate at all times of the day or night. Observing changes in the moon and stars contribute much information to the field of science. Chart the phases of the moon. How could you observe and record how the sun's movement changes from spring to summer to fall? Enjoy a sunset. Talk about how the sky's colors change throughout the process.

There are some excellent children's books that provide answers to the "why's" that people ask about nature and science. But the wonderful thing about nurturing scientific curiosity is that you don't have to know the answers. The biggest part of science is exploring, wondering, and observing.

When's the last time you paused to wonder about the world around you? Take time today.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within THREE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next three years.

the reception. The hand-painted signs tacked around the wagon proclaimed "Farming in the Fast Lane," "Just Hitched," "Watch Us Grow," and "Moving West."

The bridal attendants drove pick-up trucks to the reception, which was held at an indoor skating rink because of its large display of antique farm implements. The room was decorated in a western theme with blue checkered tablecloths and yellow plates.

Friends prepared a pig roast to serve to guests. The menu also included pasta salad that the bridal pair made the night before the wedding.

The cake was made by a friend and featured several individual layer cakes decorated with a tractor, sheep, and barn. The realistic looking ground was made with peanut butter mixed with confectioner's sugar and scattered beneath the tractor and sheep.

Amy is the daughter of Larry and Susan Eshelman.

When planning your wedding, Amy advises: "Don't listen to everybody. Do what you want."

Her mother adds, "So many parents try to run their kids' weddings. It's their day. Let them have what they want."

Berks Society 3

Berks Group 3 of the Society of Farm Women held its April meeting, where a foreign exchange student, Noriko Shimada from Japan, talked about her life at the Senior High and her life she has in Japan. She was very interesting.

The next meeting is at Lora Oswald, Oley Meadows, on May 20.

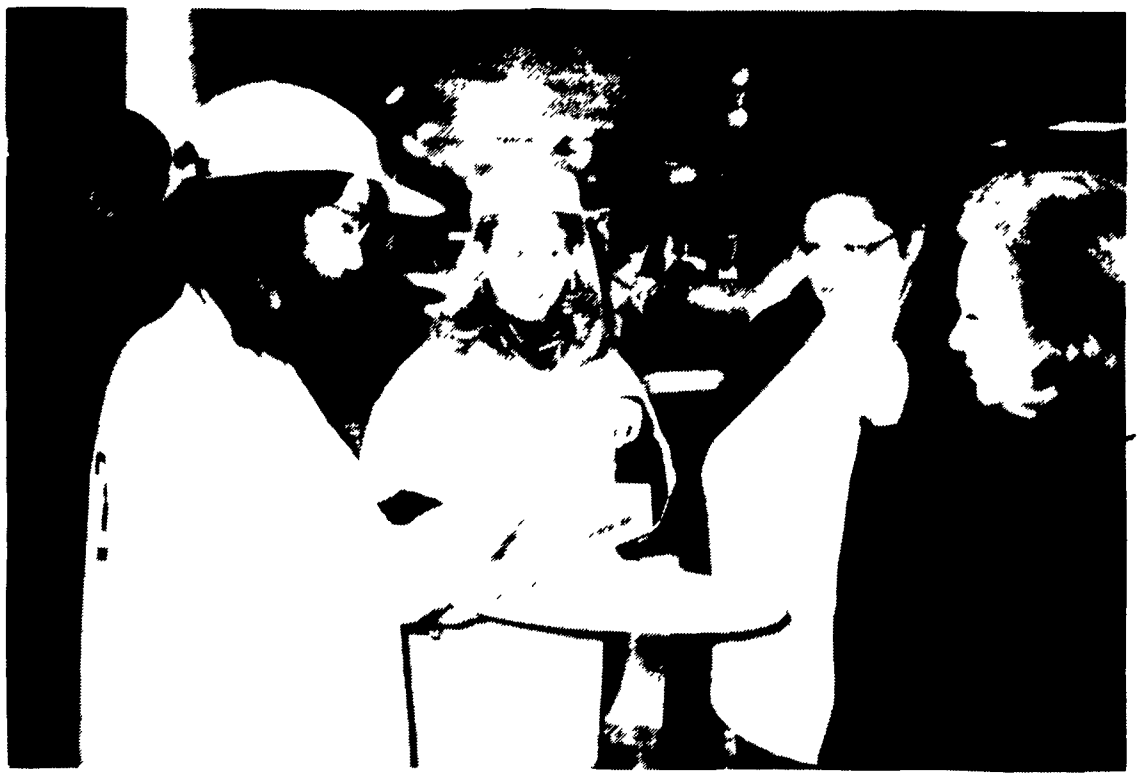
Berks Society 4

The May meeting of Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 was held at the home of Barbara Shaner, Boyertown.

President Virginia Taylor conducted the business meeting. Reports were made on the County Board Meeting and the State Executive Board Meeting.

In honor of Mother's Day, each member received a flower plant.

The June 4 meeting will be at the Boyertown home of Georgeanna Fullterton. A Key Club member will be the speaker.



More than 1,500 trendy shoppers at Bloomingdales on Fifth Avenue in New York City were treated to free samples of skim plus milk from the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) and gourmet cookies from Cookie Island — an exclusive mail-order cookie company. Processed by Farmland Dairy, Skim Plus is fat-free milk with added calcium, protein and other milk solids.

Serving as a test market for a "milk and cookies bar" in Bloomingdales, the event proved to be a success story for milk. According to ADADC public relations specialist Robby Koeppel, "Milk was the star of the show. The trendy women shoppers could not believe this full-bodied product was fat free. Many of them asked where they could purchase the milk and were interested in using it not only for drinking, but for cooking low-fat meals."

To generate publicity for ButternNet in the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's marketing area in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, public relations specialists sent top newspaper and television reporters a package of these intricately-designed flavored butter molds.

Created by a Belgian-born businesswoman, the mini-butter sculptures can be custom-ordered through the ButterNet, which is listed as http://www.realbutter.com on the World Wide Web site of the Internet. More than 18,000 pounds of butter designs are shipped each week in addition to recipes, tips, and news about butter.

McLane

8 Models Available

21" MULCHING MOWER

Push and Self Propelled

SALE PRICE ONLY $249.00

(Also Available: 21" convertible mower for mulching or bagging)

Engineered like no other lawn mower in the world!

The new McLane mulching mower features a high-lift steel blade and a new deck configuration which create a super vacuum that holds grass blades upright for maximum cutting efficiency. The clippings are forced through a special recirculation chamber and down into the mower path for recutting. This recutting process is repeated over and over again until the clippings are pulverized into a fine mulch. This mulch is then driven deep into the lawn, returning nutrients and moisture to the soil. Grass clippings and leaves virtually disappear.

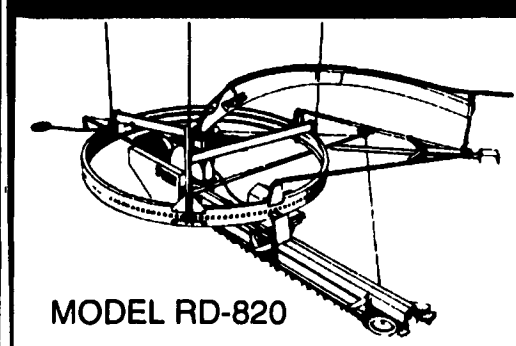
Ring drive without an extra motor



MODEL RD-820

RING-DRIVE: With the roller-chain ring drive, only one motor powers the machine.

AUTOMATIC LOWERING OPTION: A winch lowers the RD-820 automatically after each complete revolution.

GATHERING CHAIN: The Patz cutters and claws cut loose frozen and hard-packed silage efficiently, and then move it to the blower faster.

POWER CUTTER: Spring tension keeps high-speed, self-sharpening blades tight to the silo wall to shave it clean.

TORQUE LIMITER: Ratchet-pin design protects the ring and drive system while working through tough conditions.

Mother Nature Meets Her Match

Let's face it–Mother Nature can be pretty hard on that beautiful new deck you just installed. But if you install a BROCK DECK System you can keep your deck looking new and outwit Mother Nature.

Available in tan, white and gray, BROCK DECK cuts just like wood so the design possibilities are endless. But unlike wood BROCK DECK planks and railings are made of environmentally friendly Hi Polymer PVC. They last years longer than wood and never need stain, paint or sealant.

Get the deck that you can smile about even when Mother Nature is at her worst–BROCK DECK Systems.

Cottonseed Campaign Clinches Victory

RALEIGH, N.C. — The champion of this year's National Agri-Marketing Association college competition didn't just walk away with a shiny trophy. They picked up some real-world marketing skills as well.

With a marketing plan for EZ Flow Cottonseed, the University of Wisconsin-Madison student NAMA team won the National Championship April 12 in San Diego, Calif. over 26 other universities.

In the contest, each team develops a marketing plan for an agricultural input or commodity output by adding value to a product in an established market. After students submit an executive summary and 20-minute presentation to a panel of agricultural marketing professionals, the team with the strongest marketing strategy is crowned.

According to UW NAMA Adviser Tom Schomisch, this year's product went beyond theory and books.

"My students had the unique opportunity to work side-by-side with a real company to help investigate market potential for a viable product," he said. "The knowledge they gained helped lay the groundwork for a sound strategic campaign."

Students spent the entire fall semester researching possibilities for the contest, said UW NAMA Chairperson Renee Rippchen, a junior from Richland Center, Wis.

"For example, we considered granulated honey and ostrich meat," she said, "but these products offered limited market potential."

NAMA team members discovered their product last year while working at Cotton Incorporated's booth at the World Dairy Expo, in Madison, Wis. Cotton Incorporated is the marketing and research arm of U.S. cotton growers and importers based in Raleigh, N.C.

Coated cottonseed — a prototype product being developed by Cotton Incorporated — presented a unique marketing opportunity.

"The biggest hindrance to cottonseed usage is difficult handling," said Cotton Incorporated's Tom Wedegaertner, associate director of cottonseed research and marketing. "With the new coating process, we alleviate the problem by making cottonseed flow like grain."

To further enhance this product's value, students added another feature — roasting. Research at the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center shows that roasting cottonseed can result in increased milk production in dairy cattle.

Roasted and coated cottonseed was our winner, Rippchen said. "Not only would it offer clear benefits to feed dealers and farmers, but it could compete within an established marketplace.

"Because many of us grew up on dairy farms, it was easy for us to see what tremendous benefits a roasted and coated cottonseed could offer," she said.

The difficult part was identifying the customer profile with the greatest sales potential. To help determine product acceptance, UW NAMA worked with Cotton Incorporated in developing a market study.

Wedegaertner said, "We both had a vested interest in finding out if feed dealers and farmers would switch from their current feed products."

Surveys, along with samples of the coated cottonseed, were mailed to 326 feed mills in Wisconsin. This research generated a 60 percent response rate.

"It was a win-win situation," he said. "While students built a strong foundation for their marketing plan, Cotton Incorporated obtained new insights into the customer profile."

The study also stirred a number of product inquiries. "It primed the pump in terms of product interest," he said. "I've received at least a dozen phone calls from feed dealers asking when the product would be available."

Schomisch said he is impressed with his students for picking a product that is difficult to market. "For example, cottonseed isn't packaged, and it's vulnerable to competition. It poses a number of current-day marketing problems."

But the UW NAMA chapter came up with the right solutions.

"This type of competition exposes students to daily marketing challenges," Schomisch said. "By learning how to think strategically, these individuals will be better prepared for today's marketing environment."

The UW-Madison student team won the National Championship at this year's National Agri-Marketing Association competition with its plan for roasted and coated cottonseed. Front row, from left, Laura Daniels, Burlington, Wis. and Amber Ellsworth, Elkhorn, Wis. Middle row, Jane Koepke, Oconomowoc, Wis.; Renee Rippchen, Richland Center, Wis.; and Rochelle Fisher, Green Bay, Wis. Back row, Erik Huschitt, Brownstown, Wis.; Mark Taylor, Clinton, Wis. (graduate adviser); Scott Rasch, Austin, Minn. (graduate adviser); and Tom Schomisch, faculty adviser, agricultural journalism, college of agricultural and life sciences.

75th Anniversary

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Eastern States Exposition will celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Big E September 13-29 in West Springfield, Mass.

The rich and colorful history of the Big E includes presidential visits, performances by world renowned entertainers, national livestock and craft contests, hockey greats, hurricanes, floods and magical moments that have left indelible memories etched in the hearts and minds of five generations of fairgoers.

In preparation for the historic "Diamond Jubilee" exhibit, The Big E Marketing department is interested in locating memorabilia related to Eastern States Exhibition's annual event from area residents and business people who may own items as part of a personal collection. Personal collectibles on loan to Eastern States Exposition may be displayed as part of this unique exhibition to be housed in the New England Center.

The Big E is primarily looking for "three dimensional items" such as trophies, ribbons, rosettes, medals, old posters, signs, handicrafts that may have won awards in the National Quilt Contests held in the 1930s or other ESE craft contests, any Exposition materials signed by visiting Presidents Eisenhower and Nixon or Exposition entertainers as well as photos, home movies and other interesting historic items with visual appeal.

All loaned items will be carefully catalogued, insured and returned following the 1996 Big E. Items may also be donated to The Big E, where they will be added to the archives.

To loan or donate items, or for more information on the exhibit and its contents, please contact Noreen Tassinari, director of marketing, at (413) 787-0110 weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

WHAT IS YOUR TITLE?

Have you been to any good junior livestock shows recently?

If you answered "yes," you probably saw several people around the showring watching with similar enthusiasm and intensity as yourself.

Around the ring you probably saw livestock breeders and feeders, parents, other junior exhibitors, some people you would consider to be highly skilled livestock fitters, and still others whom you perceive to be livestock "jockeys." When you glanced around the showring to see who was watching, how many "stockmen" did you see?

Alternatively, at that same good junior livestock show, you probably had the opportunity to walk through the barn just before the show started. When you were back in the barn, who did you see? You probably saw junior exhibitors, with the help of their parents, preparing their livestock for exhibition. You may have noticed a livestock breeder or feeder, some highly skilled livestock fitters, and still others whom you perceive to be livestock "jockeys."

Among all of the people you saw back in the barn before the show, who was working with the animals and who was standing back admiring all of the hard work taking place? Among those individuals working with animals or fitting animals, did you happen to ask them: "What is your title?"

In the realm of junior livestock shows, maybe this question is more accurately and clearly asked, "How would you categorize your role in this activity?"

A few possible answers include breeder . . . extension agent . . . feeder . . . parent . . . vo-ag instructor . . . exhibitor . . . fitter . . . jockey . . . 4-h club leader . . . fair official . . . stockman.

Interestingly enough, each of the individuals within a particular category have a vested interest in a junior livestock show. Some people are interested in junior livestock shows for more valid reasons than others.

I will define what I believe to be the people who are classified into particular categories, the reasons I believe they attend junior livestock shows, limitations to their participation, and conclude with some thoughts for the future.

• Breeder. The individual who owned the cow, ewe, or sow at the time she was mated. Typically, the breeder also owned the female when she calved, lambed or farrowed. Livestock breeders desire to know how a particular individual developed. Often you see swine breeders who have sold pigs to junior exhibitors at the junior show. The breeder can assess his breeding program relative those of other swine breeders and can gauge his success or failure accordingly. This is a valid reason to attend a junior show. But sometimes we see breeders at a junior show where their level of participation exceeds an acceptable limit. When the junior member first purchased the animal, the breeder felt obligated to "give something back" to the junior member, probably due to some exhorbitant purchase price that was paid for the feeder animal. The breeder agreed to help the junior member on the day of the show with fitting of the animal. This is not a valid reason to attend a junior show. Furthermore, most people find objectionable the practice of permitting a breeder to assist with fitting an animal for an exhibitor in a junior show.

• Extension agent. Some junior livestock shows are conducted as part of formal programs with the oversight of extension agents. These junior shows are part of the educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service. Most extension agents attend junior livestock shows in an "official" capacity, so their presence at the show obviously is justified. They are facilitators of the activity, and in such lies their valid reason to attend a junior show.

• Feeder. The individual that cared daily for the animal throughout the growing period. Hopefully, this is the junior member. If this is not the junior member, then it should be a brother or sister or, lastly, a parent. This person's role is no different from that of the breeder of the animal — observance of the show; nothing less, and certainly nothing more. Being a spectator is a valid reason to attend a junior livestock show.

• Parent. This should be obvious. Each junior exhibitor will have parents or legal guardians who oversee their actions and ultimately are responsible for the junior member's safety and well-being. This is a valid reason for parents to attend junior shows.

• Vo-ag instructor. Some junior livestock shows are conducted as part of formal FFA programs and constitute educational programs of vocational agriculture programs. Similar to extension agents, vo-ag instructors are facilitators of the activity and have a valid reason to attend a junior show.

• Exhibitor. The person who presents the animal in the showring. This is limited only to the junior member. At most junior livestock shows, in the event that the junior member cannot show his or her animal, it may be shown by another junior member enrolled and participating in the program. There are no other exceptions to this rule. You wouldn't play little league baseball in the absence of your 8-year-old son! Likewise, without junior exhibitors we wouldn't have junior livestock shows!

• Fitter. This again should be the junior member. If this is not the junior member, then it should be a brother or sister or, lastly, a parent. Fitters come in a variety of shapes and sizes. Their talents are diverse with clippers, hair, oils, and other numerous "foo-foo" products. They carry their "tools" in a showbox or toolbox, and no one may ever see the contents of such boxes, therefore maintaining the "edge" in terms of fitting equipment and talent. Fitters, other than the junior exhibitor, siblings and parents, do not have a valid reason to attend junior livestock shows, except as spectators.

• 4-H club leader. Similar to an extension agent and vo-ag instructor, many junior livestock shows would not be possible without the volunteered services of 4-H club leaders. These men and women give freely of their time to help bring to fruition the efforts of junior exhibitors with their livestock projects. Their presence at a junior livestock show is necessary, appreciated, and a valid reason to attend.

• Jockey. This is probably the most difficult category of persons to describe. You probably won't see this person in the barn immediately before the show. He will be in some other location, away from the crowds and out of the mainstream of activity. You probably won't see him during the show either. He will be back in the barn performing the "miraculous acts" that make the livestock under his care and supervision closer to the ideal. If you do see him, he will look tired, because he was probably awake most of the night before the show preparing animals for showday. Livestock jockeys do not have a valid reason to attend a junior livestock show except as spectators.

• Fair official. This group of people has the uneviable task of overseeing events at the fair. Typcially, they wear a badge or ribbon indicating their resolve to participate in a "thankless" job of ensuring that the ideals of the fair and its shows continue in the coming years. They are approached with concerns, problems, confrontations, dilemmas, and other "headaches" on which they must thrive for the good of the fair. This is a valid reason to attend a junior livestock show.

• Stockman. Everyone at a junior livestock show needs not become a stockman, but we should adhere to the principles described by Herbert Windsor Mumford, who wrote, "A Tribute to the Stockman" that was printed in 1915 in the Breeder's Gazette. Stockmen are always welcome at junior livestock shows!

"A Tribute To The Stockman"

Behold the Stockman!
Artist and Artisan.
He may be polished, or a diamond in the rough — but always a gem.
Whose devotion to his animals is second only to his love of God and family.
Whose gripping affection is tempered only by his inborn sense of the true proportion of things.
Who cheerfully braves personal discomfort to make sure his livestock suffer not.
To him there is rhythm in the clatter of the horse's hoof, music in the bleating of the sheep, and in the lowing of the herd.
His approaching footsteps call forth the affectionate whinny of recognition.

Keystone Announces Scholarship Winners

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Justin Howes and Andrew Young have been named recipients of Keystone's Farm Credit's two annual scholarships.

Applicants for Keystone's scholarship must be high school seniors who live in Keystone's 15-county territory and plan to major in agriculture or agribusiness at a four-year college on a full-time basis.

Justin Howes

Andrew Young

Justin is the son of Sue Kauffman and Jay Howes, both of Elizabethtown. Justin attends Elizabethtown Area High School and plans to study agricultural economics at Penn State University. He has been involved in the National Honor Society, Student Council, Northeast 4-H Dairy Club, Future Business Leaders of America, and Rheems Athletic Association. He is also active in the Varsity Club, Key Club, and serves as treasurer of his senior class.

Andy is the son of Matthew and Linda Young of Peach Bottom. He attends Solanco High School and plans to study agricultural economics at the University of Delaware. Andy has been active in the National Honor Society as president, his church youth group, the Solanco FFA, the Lancaster County FFA, and the Solanco Peer-Helper Program. He serves on the Solanco Fair Board and participated in the Solanco Gifted Program. He has received recognition throughout his high school career, most notably as Rotary student of the month, New Era teen of the week, and Sun Ledger's face in the crowd.

Both of these students will each receive a $500 check and a commemorative plaque.

His calm, well-modulated voice inspires confidence and wins affection. His coming is greeted with demonstrations of pleasure, and his going with evident disappointment.

Who sees something more in cows than the drudgery of milking, more in swine than the grunt and squeal, more in the horse than the patient servant, and more in the sheep than the golden hoof.

Herdsman, shepherd, groom — yes, and more.

Broadminded, big hearted, whole souled; whose life and character linger long after the cordial greeting is stilled and the hearty handshake is but a memory; whose silent influence forever lives.

May his kind multiply and replenish the earth.

Final Thoughts

We can manage without the "fitters" and "jockeys." We can even manage without breeders and feeders who lose sight of their valid reasons for attending junior livestock shows. We cannot afford to have livestock shows without extension agents, vo-ag instructors, 4-H club leaders, fair officials, and parents.

Without junior exhibitors, there is no valid reason to conduct a junior livestock show, and we can ill-afford to lose the stockmen who participate in our junior livestock programs.

Foundation Updates Teachers On Ag, Environment

GROVE CITY (Mercer Co.) — Agriculture Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania (AAFPA) recently conducted the first of several regional workshops to update the graduates of the summer Agriculture in the Classroom program about the interdependence of agriculture and the environment.

Graduates and their teacher-colleagues have been invited to attend one of six regional workshops funded by a grant from the state Department of Environmental Protection.

With materials provided by the Pennsylvania Soybean Board and the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association, teachers learned about the vast array of environmentally friendly products made from soybeans and corn. They experienced first-hand the teaching aids and materials available by agricultural organizations and the impact these products have on their lives.

With the assistance from the Crawford County and Bedford County Conservation Districts, the teachers learned about the importance of soil and the care that farmers take to preserve the top soil so important to their livelihood.

Teachers also exchanged ideas about how they are using the agricultural lessons they learned during the summer program in their classrooms and share pictures of projects their students are doing in their classes.

Three more regional workshops are planned for June 18 in Wellsboro, June 19 in Frackville, and June 20 in West Chester. Any teacher interested in learning more about agriculture and the environment and how to present that to their own classes are welcome. Registration must be received by June 10. There is no cost to the participant.

Fungicide Receives EPA Approval

WAYNE, N.J. — The EPA has just granted Pennsylvania a Section 18 Emergency Exemption to allow the application of American Cyanamid's Acrobat™ MZ fungicide during the 1996 season to protect potatoes against late blight, including the aggressive strains that are resistant to metalaxyl.

Late blight is the disease that caused the Irish potato famine 150 years ago.

This is a federal exemption and allows for the sale of Acrobat MZ based on state approval.

The unique mode of action of Acrobat MZ combines dimethomorph and mancozeb to provide effective management of potato late blight. While other fungicides inhibit fungal development, Acrobat MZ destroys the fungal cell wall, resulting in the death of the fungal cell. It is active against all stages in the life cycle of the potato to late blight fungus where active growth occurs.

Acrobat has excellent antisporulant activity, so it actually stops the formation of new fungal spores, offering superior protection against tuber blight. Acrobat is not easily washed off because it penetrates the leaf surface and translocates within the potato leaf. The 10-day residual activity of Acrobat helps protect the plant between sprayings.

Acrobat™ MZ fungicide is most effective when applied as a protectant before late blight occurs, said Cyanamid Technical Specialist David Feist. "A maximum of five applications of Acrobat MZ can be made on a 5-10 day spray schedule depending on disease severity and weather conditions. Applications can be made up to 14 days prior to harvest."

Technician Receives Case IH Combine Training

RACINE, Wis. — Ken Diller of C.B. Hoober & Son in Intercourse, Pa., recently completed an intensive training session on servicing Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow® combines here at the Case Corporation service training center.

The session Diller attended focuses on troubleshooting the Axial-Flow combine electrical system. Attendees test all electrical components, diagnose circuit failures using the on-board diagnostic system featured in each of the five 2100 Series models, and repair circuits. Technicians attending this advanced course must have previously completed the basic session on combine hydraulic and electrical systems.

Case offers more than 20 different courses of technical study throughout the year at three dedicated training centers and selected technical schools in North America. The majority of the sessions are a week-long combination of hands-on and classroom training on the latest techniques for fast, accurate diagnostics and service of Case IH agricultural and Case construction equipment. Diller is among nearly 3,000 North American dealer personnel who attend one or more of the sessions annually.

Ken Diller of C.B. Hoober & Son in Intercourse, Pa., attended a training session like this one held recently at the Case Corporation service training center in Racine, Wis.

Heavy Duty Round Balers From New Holland

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland has introduced three new heavy-duty round balers that are filled with features farmers demand most.

Options let owners custom-design the new balers to individual requirements. The new machines form bales with a combination of rolls and heavy-duty belts to minimize leaf loss, according to New Holland product management.

The machines have pivoting front rolls that provide a large core-forming area for quick core forming in all crops, even in dry or slippery material such as straw, peanut hay, and corn stalks. Bale forming belts are hydraulically tensioned to give the operator finger-tip bale density control.

The trio of new balers includes the Model 644 that forms 4x5-foot bales weighing up to a half ton, the Model 654 makes 4x6-foot bales weighing up to 1,600 pounds, and the Model 664 forms 5x6-foot bales that weight up to a ton. A 60 HP tractor is suggested for the Model 644, 65 HP for the Model 654, while the Model 664 requires an 80 HP unit.

The three new balers are available with the choice of three wrapping systems that include Auto-Wrap™, Bale Command Plus™, and Fastnet™.

Bale Command Plus makes running a round baler easier than ever from the comfort of the tractor seat, according to New Holland. Convenient key stroke operation lets the driver choose bale size, tie pattern, twine tie, or net wrap. The operator can switch from twine to net without leaving the cab. The control unit monitors bale forming and provides a digital display bar graph to direct weaving pattern for perfectly formed bales.

Wide six-bar pickups with closly spaced, curved tines sweep up crops cleanly and make it easy to crowd material into the ends of the bale chamber to form dense, square-end bales. Pickup slip-clutch protection makes it easier to get through uneven or lumpy windrows without damage or plugging.

New Holland indicated the roll-belt bale forming system produces superior bales that are heavier and denser without hard-packed cores. Bales are easier to feed, grind, or shred.

New Holland introduces three new, heavy-duty round balers that are filled with features that farmers demand most.

The programs associated with FFA and the Alumni Organization empower young people to achieve. I want to help with this cause in any way I can."

The FFA Alumni Association has a membership of 40,000 and has a close association with the student organization, which boasts a roster of 500,000 members. In fact, the Alumni Association, which is celebrating its 25th Anniversary, serves as the support and promotion arm for the student membership.

Together the two organizations strive to build a learning environment that address the "whole person."

"I believe that Ty recognizes the value of a good student-teacher relationship," said FFA Alumni Association Executive Director Ricardo L. Valencia. "Through our association with him and through the introduction of several new programs, we will continue to improve the educational opportunities provided to FFA members. We seek to make a positive difference in the lives of young people by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and agricultural education."

England's self-titled debut album premiered in June of 1995 and found immediate acceptance with national media and in the hearts of country music fans, Entertainment Weekly called the album a "remarkably poised performance," while fans helped propel England's first single, "Should've Asked Her Faster," to number three on the Billboard singles chart. Thus began a busy year which culminated in nominations for Performance Magazine's New Touring Act of the Year, Great Britain Country Music Association's International Rising Star and Song of the Year and Music City News Rising Star - Male awards. England's second album is due in late summer, with a new single planned for June release.

England will perform at the opening ceremony of November's National FFA Convention, which is attended by more than 40,000 in Kansas City.

Annual membership in the National FFA Alumni Association is $7. For information, contact the National FFA Alumni Association, P.O. Box 15058, Alexandria, VA 22309-0058, (703) 360-3600.

NEW HOLLAND

SAVE TIME

WHIRL-A-FEED® SPINNING ACTION

The New Holland Model 40 forage blower saves you time at the silo. This 1000-rpm blower features a 48-inch diameter hopper that center-fills silos 80 feet and higher. The Whirl-a-Feed® rotary table spins crops into the blower housing, and material gets off to a fast start up the blower pipe. Spinning action breaks up heavy clumps, and virtually eliminates plugging. There's less drag on the fan, and more efficient use of the tractor's horsepower.

Find out how to save time with the Model 40 from New Holland.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Has 2 Heavy Duty Gehl Pull Type Disc Mower Conditioners In Stock

Today's Most Advanced Disc Mower Conditioner

A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

Rugged high-speed cutting discs, spinning at 3,000 rpm, easily slice through down and tangled crops or dense wet undergrowth to deliver a clean cut

The cut crop is delivered to Gehl's specially designed intermeshing rubber conditioning rolls for thorough, yet gentle crop conditioning They'll condition your crop for fast drying

Designed with the operator in mind.

These disc mower conditioners were designed from the ground up with the operator in mind They're built extra-strong for more years of reliable service

Unlike competitive units that use the cutterbar as a frame member, the Gehl disc mower conditioners feature a sturdy cutterbar support frame that extends beneath the entire cutterbar This design cradles the cutterbar, protecting it from direct impact with rocks or other field obstructions

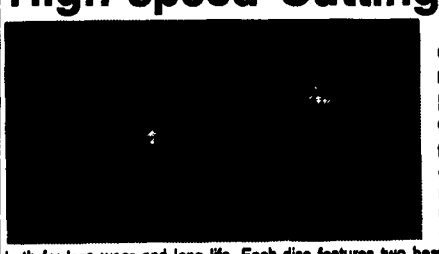
In addition, the rugged trailer main frame is formed from a four-by-eight-inch structural steel tube for added strength and long life

The 540 or 1000 rpm driveline features an equal angle hitch for smooth power transfer. A combination slip clutch/over-running clutch provides overload protection.

The rugged transmission delivers power to the cutting discs and conditioning rolls. The gear-driven discs operate in an oil bath for extra-long life and dependable service.
The cutterbar carries a full two-year warranty.

ONLY FROM GEHL
Gehl's exclusive, full width, totally enclosed cutterbar support frame extends beneath the entire cutterbar. The cutterbar (outlined in yellow) is protected from direct impact with rocks or other field obstructions.

High-speed Cutting With Unmatched Durability



Gehl's reliable, proven disc cutterbar features gear-driven discs, rotating at 3,000 rpm. The gears operate in an oil bath for less wear and long life. Each disc features two heavy-duty reversible knives for twice the cutting life. Specialy designed v-blades and built-in lifters one each disc smoothly lift the cut crop into the conditioning rolls.

The skid shoes are attached to the support frame for added strength There's one skid shoe beneath each cutting disc for additional support.

Easy access all around.

A large hinged shield provides simple access to the cutterbar. In addition, hinged shielding allows easy entry to the conditioning roll drives for maintenance and adjustment.

Backed by Gehl.

Since 1859, Gehl Company has been serving world agriculture with products that have gained a reputation for dependability and innovative design. These disc mower conditioners continue that tradition.

GEHL.

An equal angle PTO delivers smooth, chatter-free power transfer.

Three-point flotation support provides quick response. For uneven terrain, the three-point header flotation delivers a full 11 inches of oscillation. That's more lateral movement than four-point systems. You get clean fast, cutting with protection from rocks and other field obstructions

WIDE ROLLS FOR BETTER CONDITIONING

Conditioning rolls are as wide as the cutterbar to deliver more uniform conditioning The full-width machined intermeshing conditioning rolls gently condition your crop for fast drying and maximum nutrient retention.

Ticor Rubber Conditioning Rolls

Safety shields have been removed for illustrative purposes.

GEHL New Swing Frame Mower Conditioners

Maneuverability and capacity of a self-propelled...at a pull-type price

Available For Immediate Delivery at Binkley & Hurst Inc.

Gehl center-pivot swing frame mower conditioners deliver high volume cutting and conditioning with outstanding maneuverablity. Two new models are available; the 2245 with 12'3" cutting width, and the 2275 with 14'3" cutting width

These machines pivot at the center of the frame for easy header positioning So you can cut back-and-forth across the field from either the right or left side of the tractor . or tow the unit directly behind the tractor for road travel.

Change from windrow to swath in seconds....without tools. With stationary windrow shields and adjustable fluffer you can match drying conditions with high-standing fluffy windrows or full-width swaths

When it comes to cutting and conditioning, these swing frames can't be beat. Gehl's reliable, simplified drive system powers the sicklebar for clean cutting. The crop is gently swept to the augers and delivered to the wide, 109-inch conditioning rolls for the thorough, gentle conditioning needed for quick drying and maximum nutrient retention.

If you're ready to cut hay in a big way, see your Gehl dealer today

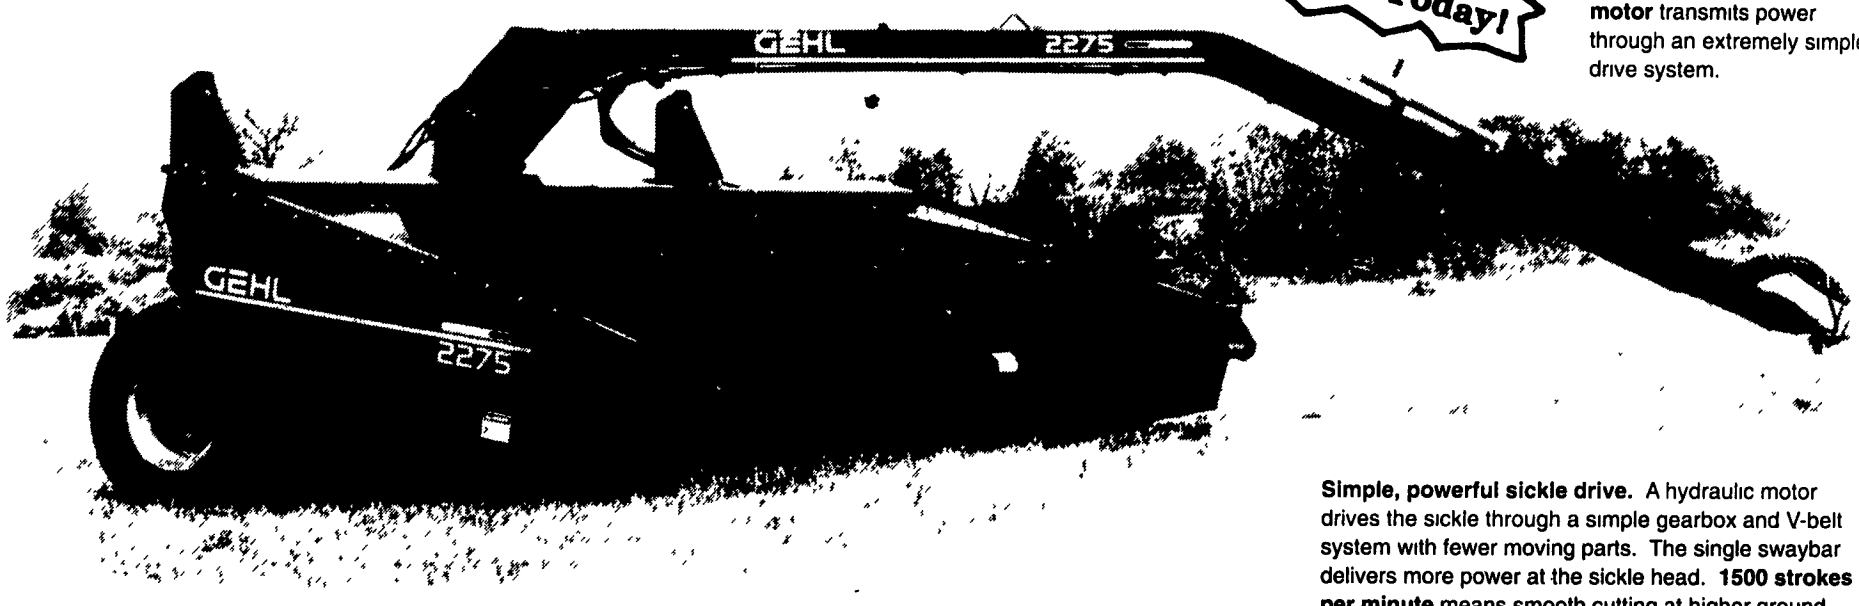
The auger is powered by a chain drive with shearbolt protection The reel is powered by a simple belt drive system that provides overload protection.

Hinged shielding provides quick and easy access for adjustments and routine maintenance.

Model 2245 Ready to Mow At Binkley & Hurst Today!

Easily adjustable guard angle. The guard angle adjusts from 6 to 14 degrees to match any field condition.

The powerful hydraulic motor transmits power through an extremely simple drive system.



Gentle crop transfer. The 22-inch diameter fixed-auger gently transports the crop to the conditioning rolls. The auger speed is adjustable for varying crop conditions.

43-inch diameter 4-bat reel sweeps your crop gently to the auger. The reel position and speed are fully adjustable for varying conditions. The riser pan is set at a steeper angle so the tines track closer to the pan for more even feeding of short crops.

High header clearance. The frame design permits a high lift height. Built-in cylinders make it easy to clear tall windrows when exiting the field.

Three point flotation support provides both lateral and vertical flotation. The header is carried on two outside arms and pivots on a center link for clean fast cutting in uneven fields. This fast-reacting system provides outstanding cutterbar protection from rocks and other field obstructions It's easily adjustable for varying field conditions.

The center pivot tongue is also the oil reservoir and oil cooler with a capacity of nearly 28 gallons.

Easy to use transport lock centers the unit securely in place during road travel.

Simple, powerful sickle drive. A hydraulic motor drives the sickle through a simple gearbox and V-belt system with fewer moving parts. The single swaybar delivers more power at the sickle head. 1500 strokes per minute means smooth cutting at higher ground speeds.

109-inch wide machined intermeshing conditioning rolls provide thorough, uniform conditioning for fast drying and maximum nutrient retention.

Self-contained hydraulic system powers the cutterbar, reel, auger and conditioning rolls. Gehl's high-capacity hydraulic pump is powered by the tractor PTO.

48 HP* MASSEY FERGUSON 253

Tractor everyone can afford.

It's easy to see why the MF 253 has become known as the best bargain in the market. With the high-torque backup from its 48 hp* Perkins engine, it outworks tractors many horses larger. And uses less fuel than tractors with far fewer horses.

Plus it delivers the unequaled implement control of an advanced Ferguson hydraulics system.

And, of course there's our outstanding prices and service support. Stop in for a great deal today.

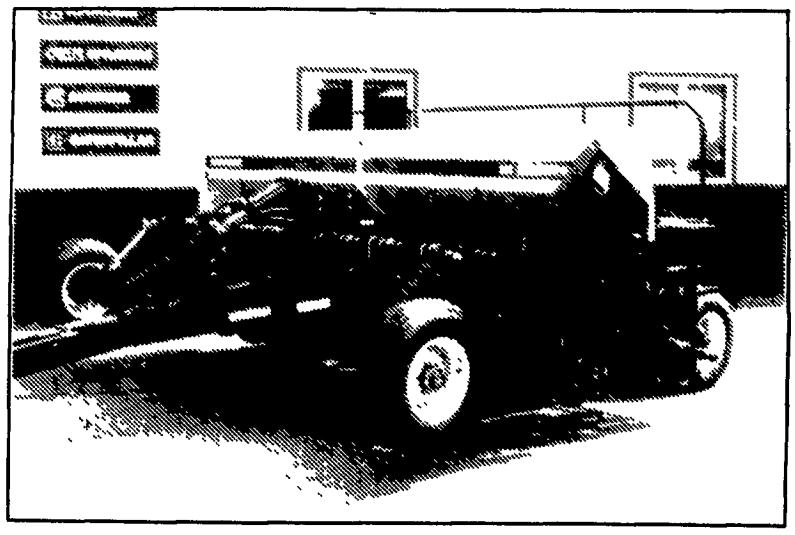
KRAUSE 5200 SERIES NO TIL DRILLS

WORK ANYTIME, ANYWHERE



Some No Til drills work best when its wet and soft; some work best when its dry and hard. Krause 5200 Series No Til drills seed at the proper depth when the ground is soft and they will penetrate in the tough, heat-baked soil of mid-summer. And Krause's use of precision seed cups and smooth seed tubes place the seed evenly in the row for ideal growth and yield.

Compare with the Competition:

- 13' and 15' Seeding Widths
- Excellent Side Hill Stability
- Narrow Transport - No Wider than It Seeds
- Excellent Road Clearance
- No Wheel Tracks
- Very Competitive PRICE

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.
